Lois Shenk is enjoying her Christmas vacation. She is a student at Pennsylvania State University.

Sam Johns, Gary Heisey & father and Zack Emsweiler were some of the lucky hunters who bagged deer last week.

Jim Hiestand, age 16, would have liked very much to have gone along hunting with his brother Dale to Huntingdon County. He felt he should stay at home and help his sister-in-law on the dairy farm instead. In Jim's spare time last Monday he took his rifle and went to Nissley's quarry near Bainbridge to try his luck as this was his first time hunting deer. To his surprise he came back with a 7-point buck. He was only about 1 1/2 miles from home while his brother Dale was many miles from home and had no luck. Needless to say Dale was a bit surprised when he came home and saw a deer hanging up at his barn. Also, needless to say Jim was a happy lad. This was one of the many times where kindness and thoughtfulness paid off.

Lions Are Hosts To Governor

The Mount Joy Lions club was host to District Governor Richard Bouden at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening at Hostetters. In addition to the inspiring remarks offered by District Governor Bouden, Deputy District Gov. Arthur Heipler and Public Relations Man Elso Rossini gave interesting talks. Each of these men also added to President Robert F. Schroll's comments about Lion Club's dedication to sight conservation.

Elsewhere in this paper you will read Mayor Frank B. Walter's proclaiming this week to be White Cane week. Lion members will be stationed at various business places on Friday evening and will receive your donation to the sight conservation program. We fortunate ones can appreciate the ability to see, but are we as grateful for this God given grace as we might be.

Your donation will help to provide the means for some less fortunate persons to see better, or provide a blind person with the help needed to make life easier for them.

Of This 'n That

and works of art it contained.

The three back rooms of the house have been almost completely rebuilt. There was no roof on them, and only a dirt floor when the present owners began restoring the establishment. One of the rooms, the kitchen, is unbelievably quaint, and another room, the library, has been completely papered with antique maps.

At the Paul Portner home, we loved the beautiful cupboards - corner, Dutch, and others, filled with lovely old china. Holly was everywhere - the Portners' hobby.

The oval staircase at the deVitry home, the walk-in fireplace in the kitchen, with arrangements for cooking - the unusual collection of musical instruments and musical memorabilia at the George Kline home - all these were unforgettable.

Another highlight was the living creche at the Sultzback House, complete with living figures of "Mary," "Joseph" and the shepherds, an adorable live donkey, woolly sheep and white fantail pigeons. Live carollers added a musical touch.

Candles were everywhere . . . the tea tables were loaded with tiny sandwiches, Christmas cookies and candies . . . there was warmth and friendliness in every home . . . it was a delightful afternoon, and we hope it becomes a traditional part of Christmas in this area.

Who has the "Right of Way"?

Nobody.

That's the law in Pennsylvania.

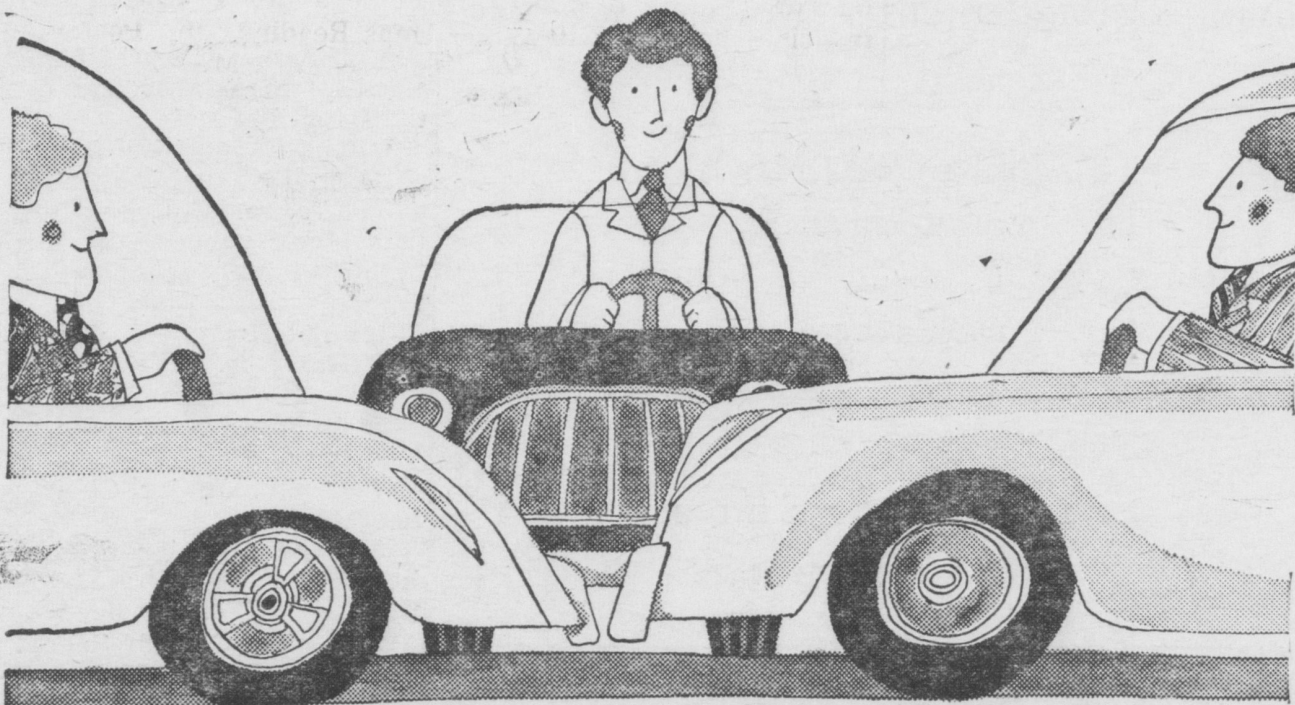

You never have the Right of Way. The other driver must give it to you. Or you must give it to the other driver. Remember—you should:

- give Right of Way to the vehicle on your right at an intersection.
- give Right of Way to any Police, Fire Emergency or Ambulance vehicle if it sounds a siren.
- give Right of Way to any vehicle already in an intersection when you approach.

- watch for "Yield" signs that govern highway junctures and proceed with caution when the road is clear.

Don't cause an accident because you "didn't know" everything you're supposed to know about Right of Way. Write today for a FREE folder to: P. O. Box 2335, Harrisburg, Pa. Organizations, use your letterhead for quantity requests.
