Over The Back Fence

By Max Smith

STRAWBERRY growers may continue to improve their 1968 crop by some attention with mulching at this time of the year. The mulch should be applied after several hard freezes so the plants are completely dormant. Two or three inches of clean straw makes a good mulch; sawdust, crushed corn cobs, or peat moss also are suitable mulches, but these latter materials use only 2 inches between the rows and one inch over the plants. Leaves do not make a good mulch material because they tend to mat down and smother the plants. Mulching the plants protects them against severe winter temperatures and helps alternate freezing and thawing. Some of the mulch may be left between the rows next spring which will control weeds, conserve moisture, and help keep the berries cleaner.

THE PURCHASE of a Christmas tree should be guided by these four major points: (1) Needle holding capacity with the pines and firs holding longer as compared to the spruce; (2) firmness of the branches to support the ornaments; (3) the fragrance of the pitch with the firs being most pleasant to most people; (4) the tree's resistance to flame is important to reduce fire hazards; get a fresh tree and keep the trunk inserted in water or moist sand, soil or peat moss. Trees should be kept away from fireplaces or any other type of open flame. A natural Christmas tree will be a holiday decoration of beauty and show appreciation of our natural resources.

THE WINTER season is a good time to apply the dormant spray for the control of brush, undesirable trees, and old stumps. The use of a special brush killer herbicide such as a mixture of 2, 4-D, 2, 4, 5-T, and oil on the lower 18 inches of a tree or sprayed on brush will do a good job of eradication. Larger trees should be notched with an axe before being sprayed in order to get good penetration. The tree or stump and the soil around the trunk should be well soaked with the above potent mixture. When this application is made during the dormant season there is very little danger of drifting or fumes that will kill valuable shrubbery or crops.

IN RECENT years we have noted some press articles questioning the value of barnyard manure; we are of the opinion that it is an important source of plant nutrients and that it should be utilized to the fullest extent. If to be stored until spring, it should be protected from the weather; leaching will take place and the resulting loss of most fertilizer nutrients if permitted outside in a pile. A timely use for manure is to topdress winter wheat fields; this should be done by the first of the year in order to get full benefits. Manure will supply needed plant nutrients in spring as well as conserve moisture & reduce heaving out of small plants. Six to 8 tons per acre is the recommended application for average soils; on sand or gravel this amount may be increased for greatest yield increases. Wheat fields that have been manured early in the winter have responded with about 5 bushel more per acre.
