NEW INVENTION MAY MEAN LIFETIME SMALL APPLIANCES
By Doris W. Thomas

A new line of small electric appliances recently introduced promise to help overcome servicing difficulties.

"Lifelong" appliances are designed for do-it-yourself repairs. Electric percolator, toaster, and a steam-spray iron are built with working components that you can lift out as units. Snap fits and easy locking mechanisms hold the components together. For example, you can lift out thermostat plus heating elements for the toaster and replace them with relative ease.

Cost of replacement parts built into components at the factory seems to be less than separate parts assembled by a serviceman. Because heating elements are part of the same component as the thermostat, chance for future trouble is also forestalled when a new component is locked into place.

Do-it-yourself repairs on small appliances may reduce both cost and frustration. When a small appliance does not operate satisfactorily, your problems are likely to begin. Almost every community lacks trained appliance servicemen with skills and necessary replacement parts to repair the variety of appliances you own.

Even if you find a serviceman, the appliance is likely to be in his shop, or at least not usable, for weeks, or possibly months.

If repair is only possible at the factory, costs of repairing and shipping the appliance are likely to be higher than the value of the appliance.

with their in-laws at the outset, and this hampers them till they soon start snarling.

It makes time other small cars shouldn't make.

Where traffic's heavy but rolling, and trucks are throwing their weight around, it's not the ideal place for small cars to make time. But the SAAB V-4 is no ordinary small car. It is out of the ordinary because it has front-wheel drive. So it doesn't push you around like others do. It pulls you around corners, curves, and other drivers' mistakes (Most ordinary small cars don't give, even as options, all the standard SAAB safety features.)

As an optional extra, our new V-4 engine has a LIFETIME GUARANTEE.

SAAB
Mutual overseas plan. Free shipment from Sweden to P.O. East Coast. You can drive it like a big car.
