Over The Back Fence

By Max Smith

THE PRACTICE of top-dressing winter wheat when vegetable growth begins in March is a good one and should help fill up the grain bins. The use of extra nitrogen at this time of the year has given increased yields and where the farmer is not under-seeding with alfalfa or clover, it is recommended. Sandy, shale, or gravel soils will usually respond better because of more leaching away of the nitrogen from the crop. The extra nitrogen is suggested only on winter wheat and not on barley or oats because of more danger of severe lodging on the two latter grains.

THERE seems to be a growing interest in the making of high moisture corn for both dairy and beef cattle. We are aware that a number of local producers have been successful with this type of feed which is a good recommendation. The cultural practices are not different from the growing of any good corn crop except the corn is harvested earlier in the fall and stored in a silo. This lends to feeding of the crop by mechanical systems which are becoming more and more common. Most any good upright silo can be used for storage that is strong and airtight. This subject will be given an evening of discussion at the cattle feeding meeting on Friday evening, Feb. 28, in the Farm and Home Center. All farmers are invited.

A NEWS release came to my desk the other day relating to a new breed of sheep that has been introduced into this country from Ireland; they are named Finnish Landrace and are now in quarantine according to health regulations. This new breed of sheep will be distributed to several of the federal research stations for cross-breeding work. In their native country these ewes generally produce from 2 to 4 lambs per pregnancy; it is hopeful they will increase lambing rate of domestic sheep, which is 1 to 2 lambs each time. My first reaction is that if this greater multiple birth factor is dominant in crossbreeding, some of our shepherds are going to have to develop lamb feeding nurseries because Mother Nature continues to put only two "dinner plates" per ewe.

THE TIME for broadcasting alfalfa or clover seed on top of winter wheat is approaching; some growers will make a split seeding; one application the last week in February and the other half of the seed the first week in March; this increases the chances of getting good coverage of the seeds. The important thing is to broadcast good quality seeds and do it by the middle of March. Growers using their own seed should have it tested for weeds and impurities at the Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg. A quick test has been developed for growers using their own seed. It is unlawful to sell untested seed in Pennsylvania. Certified seed reduces the risk and insures a better crop.

Tells of Action In Vietnam

Lieut. Patrick Glynn, stationed at Ft. Meade, Md., was the speaker Tuesday noon at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Mount Joy Rotary club, held at Hostetters.

A much-decorated veteran of a year's duty in Vietnam, he talked and showed slides about the war-torn country where half a million United States troops are now fighting.

Lieut. Glynn was attached to an intelligence unit, spending part of his time near the Demilitarized Zone in the northern part of Vietnam.

He told how every scrap of even insignificant knowledge is pieced together in an effort to outguess the enemy and to warn U. S. A. commanders of what to anticipate.

The program was arranged by Robert Kline, who also introduced the speaker.

B.P.W. to Hear District Director

Miss Phyllis Mengel, R. 3, Hummelstown, Pa., director for District VII and a member of the State Board of the Pennsylvania Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club will be a guest of the Mount Joy club at its monthly meeting on Monday evening, Feb. 24 at Hostetters.

Miss Mengel is a teacher in the Central Dauphin School District, a member of the Alpha Delta Kappa Sorority, the National Education Association and the Pennsylvania Education Association.

Elected president was John Urban. Mrs. Pat Moran was named vice-president, and Sardy Grove, secretary-treasurer.

Speakers at the meeting were Matoney, who was the Democratic county election campaign chairman in 1968, and Joseph Timko, coordinator of youth activities for the Democratic party.

The group will meet at 7:30 p.m. on the 2nd Thursday of the month at the home of Matoney.
