SEVEN CENTS

By R. A. R.

This column has been sounding off the past two or three weeks about the names of streets in the borough.

A Mount Joy native, a loyal Bulletin reader and a man who would like to have things right, if he can, wonders to us "Why is Detweiler street spelled the way it is?"

From everything he knows, it should be Detwiler.

Shortly, brick work will begin on the front of the new Mount Joy Borough building.

Inside renovations are progressing nicely.

We noted the other day a good spot in a "dead" corner where a "time capsule" would fit very neatly between a wall and the brick front. It would be interesting to wall up some kind of a container which would be opened at some time many years hence. What kind of information would make the lives of unborn generations interesting when this building (new in 1969) becomes an old building in need of repairs, renovation or replacement?

Indians Play Friday At Hershey

Could Play Warwick Again -- Meet Camp Hill In 8:30 Game

It's possible that last Friday night's Donegal-Warwick game could be replayed on Thursday, March 6.

But, if it is, the prize at stake this time will be the District III Class B. Championship.

Both the Indians and the Warriors are playing in the big PIAA tourney but they are in different brackets of the draw and could not meet each other until the 8:30 p.m. title match in the Hershey Arena.

In the meantime, hepped up basketball fans can see both clubs in action Friday night of this week as each plays its initial game in the Basketball still is a game for the big men!

Donegal's Indians have done such a tremendous job this winter that fans have almost forgotten that the name of the game is height.

But, Thursday night at the Farm Show arena it was pointed up once again that a good big team can take a good little team.

It's axiomatic.

The cliff-hanging Indians who have given the fans more fun and victory for their money than any local team in years, are without question as good a little team as anyone in basketball would want.

But, Warwick's Warriors—in the Lancaster County playoff—were just too big, too good and too successful.

Although the 67-53 score actually does tell the story, the heart of the situation was expressed by Warwick's coach Rodger Beard.

As the game ended, Donegal's cheer leaders were in tears. The winning coach consolingly pulled a couple of them together and said, "Girls, be proud of your team."

Warwick, literally, — with 6-5 towering Craig Wagaman and two hustling six foot plus forwards to help,— literally played over the Indians' heads.

Bob McCowin had been sebeduted meticulously and he was smothered all night. He was—in a sense—lucky to claim 14 points and scoring honors for Donegal.

On the other hand, Warwick's Dick Mulligan rammed home 17. All five Warrior starters scored in double figures.

From our point of view, it was guard Larry Buckner, who finally broke the Indians' back. As the fourth quarter opened, Warwick leading 56-41, he drilled in straight 16-foot shots from the exact same spot—never touching back board or rim.

That was the real end—62-43, although Donegal did not collapse, continuing to fight

Visiting Band to Play Here

The Chambersburg high school band, under the leadership of Lynn Lerew, will make a concert visit to Donegal high school this week end, featuring a Saturday night concert, beginning at 8 p.m.

Chambersburg will bring nearly 75 people, including its concert and stage bands.

During the concert Saturday night, March 1, the Donegal high school band will join the visitors for several numbers of massed musicianship.

The visitors will stay in the homes of the Donegal band members from the time they arrive on Saturday morning until they leave for home about 1:30 p.m. Sunday, March 2.

Glenn N. Leib, Donegal high school band director, said this week that the weekend visit originally was to have begun on Friday. However, because the Donegal students are involved deeply Friday nite in Class B basketball playoffs at Hershey, the Friday portion of the program was cancelled.

The schedule calls for the Chambersburg people to arrive at 10 a.m. Hosts will pick up their guests at that time, take them home for lunch and return them to Donegal high school for a 1 p.m. rehearsal.

Hosts again will pick up the visitors at about 5 p.m. for the evening meal and to give the musicians time for dressing for the concert.

All musicians will be back at the school at 7 p.m. to prepare for the concert at 8 p.m. Admission to the concert is free.

Following the concert there will be a party time for the guests and their stu-

What would you have done?

If you had been Commander Bucher, captain of the U. S. Pueblo, would you have pursued a course similar to the one he followed when accosted by hostile forces?

Or, would you have uncovered the pitifully light guns with which the ship was fortified and defended the vessel to the death?

It makes no difference how you answer the question. Apparently, there is no clear-cut right or wrong answer.

But, a philosophical question is developing in the minds of many.

When the Pueblo first was taken captive, there were strong characters who wanted immediately to send a task force big enough and strong enough to reclaim the U. S. property.

'Of This and That'

by the editor's wife

There's something about a wood fire that is magical.

The apple wood lies there in the iron basket and burns, making a heavenly fragrance, casting flickering shadows, and throwing out heat and light.

But it really does so much more than just that! The fragrance brings back the memory of all the pleasant campfires, leaf-burnings, and Christmas Eves by candlelight that we can remember.

It even smells like the smoke from the wood cook stove at Grandmother's, and brings to mind the home-cured ham that used to sizzle on it and the "drop biscuits" one ate with the gravy!

It re-creates that warm, busy kitchen, the hub of the whole house, where meals were cooked, where hands and faces were washed in water warmed in the "reservoir" by that same cook stove; where the day's activities were planned and many of them executed; where vegetables from the garden were cleaned and canned; where the men folk sat to make minor repairs to tools or harness.

And then in the dancing flames of the fire it's possible to see faces & places of other days — childhood happenings, family outings, college days, the first baby — any and everything that crosses one's mind is right there in the fire, as plain as can be!

Just as easily, the flames can picture the future—that long-dreamed-of trip to the West Coast, the trailer trip to the Bay, the spring planting to be done, or a journey to the mountains.

It is a painless, pleasant, inexpensive way of traveling, of being entertained, of enjoying one's self. Just a half-dozen logs of cherry or apple wood will do the trick! We call it "fireplace winter time magic," and of it we never tire.

Every once in a while we realize how many new things we have learned about and come to enjoy since we have moved to Pennsylvania.
