MAKE TRIP ALONG GULF OF ST. LAWRENCE

A trip centered along the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the St. Lawrence River was enjoyed by Mrs. Edith Musser, Mrs. Alice Myers and Misses Ruth and Anna Mae Eby.

They visited Montreal, Quebec City, Gaspé, and Perce, where the many thousands of birds nest on Bonaventure Island.

At Rimouski they boarded the Jean Brillant Steamer that serves weekly the "North Shore" of the Gulf of St. Lawrence for 575 miles delivering mail, cargo, and bank service.

At the 15 ports of call the people come to meet the boat, do their banking, a few to sell their handwork, of board the boat to go to another port, or just to see the weekly contact from the "outside."

At Romaine about 150 Indians, many in old style costumes, made the portcall colorful and interesting. For many villages the people rely on this steamer for their transportation on, and away from, North Shore.

LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN

The same day Apollo II landed on the moon, Miss Mary Jane Hoffer of South Market Street and Mrs. Gladys Kear of East Main Street flew by Icelandic Airlines to Iceland for a 12-day vacation.

The Astronauts brought back moon dust but the women returned with moon rocks (lava). Part of the Astronauts' training took place in Iceland as the terrain there was similar to what they expected to find on the moon surface.

The local women visited Mrs. Kear's son, AC3 Michael A. Kear, who is stationed at the U. S. Naval Base in Keflavik and the three went on extended tours of the island. They saw huge volcanic craters, glaciers, waterfalls, lakes, an erupting geyser, farmland, hot houses heated by hot springs where they grow all their produce, vegetables & fruit, fishing villages, Icelandic ponies and the beautiful sunsets, also shopping in the capitol, Reykjavik (90,000 population).

They were guests at the homes of several native Icelanders and also met Terry Zink, another young man from town, who is stationed at Keflavik.
