Rotarians Hear Hershey Speaker

An insight into the way big shorts and entertainment features are promoted at Hershey Sports Arena was given Mount Joy Rotarians Tuesday noon.

The speaker was Cy Little, assistant public relations manager of the arena.

He said that Hershey faces a unique and difficult problem of advertising its attractions because its 26-county drawings area is not metropolitan area but is scattered in such a way that its advertising must be distributed to 56 newspapers, 30 dailies, four Sunday papers, 25 radio stations and five television stations.

To contract and to service this far-flung area of which Hershey is the "hub" demands far more time and effort than otherwise might be the case.

Little explained some of the promotion trade and revealed that a mailing list of some 40,000 families is maintained.

The speaker was introduced by Charles O. Groff, vice-president and program chairman.

Sportsmen Form Jr. Rifle Club

The Mount Joy Sportsmen's Association again is sponsoring a Junior Rifle Club this year.

The first meeting will be held Saturday, Jan. 17 at 8 a.m.

Anyone between the ages of 12 and 18 may contact Walter Scheffler for registration forms before or on Saturday.
