A question we've had asked a couple of times recently deserves an answer. And, possibly there are others who are interested.

Last summer the Donegal school district received an unexpected $30,000 windfall.

This is how it happened.

More than 20 years ago the late Clarence Schock formed the non-profit Joy company to develop what can roughly be identified as the Park Avenue area.

Over the years the development grew into a substantial venture and there were profits.

Now with no more land to sell, the company is being dissolved and the profits turned over to Donegal school, according to terms of the original agreement.

The $30,000 already has been distributed and there are indications that there will be additional money when the financial settlement of the company is finally completed.

In the beginning, the profit from the Joy company was to have gone to the Mount Joy schools. However, when the school merger was completed the beneficiary of the company became Donegal District.

Reminder — If your automobile bears a No. 2 windshield sticker, you have only until the end of this month to have a new inspection made.

'Of This and That'

by the editor's wife

Many interesting things come in the mail to The Bulletin. Routinely we get news releases about local college students and young men in the services. Regularly we receive brochures of activities at Longwood Gardens, at the various colleges in this area, and at such distance points as Atlantic City or the Poconos.

We seem to be on the mailing list for every kind of publication put out by industries in Lancaster County and elsewhere. (Most of them are works of art, with gorgeous photography and interesting stories.)

It goes without saying that we cannot print in The Bulletin all the material we receive, although we do make it a point to use everything that concerns local people.

A few weeks ago we were sent an advance copy of a Pennsylvania Dutch Cookbook. It was compiled by Gerald S. Lestz, editor of the Baer's Agricultural Almanac, and printed by Grosset and Dunlap in New York City.

The book includes an informal history of the Pennsylvania Dutch, a section on "The Amish Today," and a large section of mouth-watering recipes.

It is interesting that one of the recipes, for potato salad dressing, was contributed for the book by Mrs. Joan Way of 248 Marietta Ave., Mt. Joy.

Just for the record, here it is, and it sounds delicious:

- 2 eggs
- 1 tablespoon mustard
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup water

Andrew F. Reymmer, of 228 East Main Street, is winner of the 14th annual Distinguished Service Award, given by the Mount Joy Jaycees.

The high honor was presented Saturday night, Jan. 23, at the annual DSA banquet, held at Hostetters as the climax of the 1971 observance of national Jaycee week.

Reymmer, who also is president of the local chapter of Jaycees, received a handsome plaque and an electric wristwatch from Ronald Hawthorne, 1970 winner, who made the announcement which had been kept a deep secret since the selection was made about 15 days ago.

Attending, and making their appearance at the very moment the announcement was made, were Reymmer's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Reymmer of Greencastle, Pa., who had been given a special secret invitation to attend.

The award to the young man judged to have contributed most to his community during 1970, was one of three given Saturday night.

A special honor was given the Mount Joy Ambulance committee, which has worked long and hard over a period of many many months to provide missions of mercy for the community. The award was received in the name of the committee by its chairman, Harvey Stoner.

The other honor was bestowed in absentia by the Jaycees to Maurice N. Bailey for his long years of service to the community in many, (Turn to page 5)

School Board Hears Routine Reports Only

In a brief, 50-minute meeting Thursday evening, Jan. 21, Donegal School Board hired two interim teachers and heard routine reports.

Miss Kathleen L. Wiler of Lawrence Park, Erie, was named to teach home economics for the balance of this school year. A recent graduate of Penn State, she has been doing student teaching in the Donegal district.

Robert C. Miller Jr. will teach fifth grade for the remainder of this school year at Grandview, replacing Mrs. Barbara Pierce. He will be graduated from Elizabethtown college this week and he too has been doing student teaching in the district.

Concern about school funds was expressed as the Commonwealth heads into a financial trauma.

On Dec. 17, Donegal district received a quarterly subsidy check amounting to $256,097.

Board members were told that the next two checks anticipated from the state are uncertain as to when they will be issued. Presently, the state tax funding picture is unclear.

On Feb. 11, at 7:30 o'clock in the high school library, a

ZONING IS KEY TO DEVELOPMENT OF DISTRICT

Zoning is the key to successful community guidance for future growth and development!

That is the heart and meat of a long evening of explanation given Wednesday night, Jan. 20, as the recently completed "Donegal Area Comprehensive Plan" was given first public airing.

A voluminous study which was done in depth and with infinite patience over a period of two years, "the plan" actually is a 147-page publication.

Done under the sponsorship of the Mount Joy and Marietta boroughs and East Donegal Township and by the Lanc. Co. Planning Commission, the study delves into every facet of community life, telling how things are now, how they can be expected to become and making specific suggestions as to how to guide and control growth for best possible success.

About 115 people attended the meeting, held in the Donegal high school. Nearly half were attached to the project in one way or another as members of planning organizations, zoning bodies, etc.

Using visual aids to explain "the Plan," a chapter by chapter presentation of the study was given, followed by a summation by Robert S. Yates, of the Lancaster County Planning commission, and a question and answer period.

Yates pointed out that Zoning is the key to controlling growth and expansion and becomes the tool for fashioning the best possible community.

One of the most easily understood sections of the entire study report was in the area of transportation.

To facilitate traffic flow in an improved pattern in the future, three new roadways are recommended for the future: 1—a Mount Joy bypass, beginning on Road 141 just south of Donegal high school and swinging east and north to finally connect with Leffer road. The roadway would handle traffic from the Marietta area headed toward the Route 285 interchange east of Mount Joy. 2—An extension westward from School Lane in Mount Joy across land now beginning to be developed to south Angle street, and 3—A roadway north from Cargills on Rt. 441 to connect with the Maytown-Elizabethtown road about a mile north of Maytown.

The plan also would connect east School Lane with S. Barbara street.

Various general and specific recommendations were made in the areas of land use, community facilities, utilities (water and sewers), health, public safety, water availability, solid waste collection and disposal, education and recreation.
