FRED SNOOK

Fred Snook, 89, of 632 Square St., died Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 10:45 p.m. in the General hospital.

He was last employed at Stauffer's Stone Quarry, Mt. Joy.

Born in Newberry, a son of the late Jonathan and Catherine Nushkern Snook, he was a member of Cross Roads Brethren in Christ church, Mount Joy.

Surviving are his widow, Kathryn Troutwine Snook; and five children, Mrs. Sara Riggs; Lottie, wife of Norman Martin, both of Lancaster; Emma, wife of Kirk Richter, Denver R2; Joseph, Selinsgrove; and Charles F., Framingham, Mass.

Services were held Friday afternoon, Feb. 19, from the Sheetz funeral home and burial was made in the Cross Roads cemetery.

JOHN L. ZERPHEY

John L. Zerphey, 75, of 339 Marietta Ave., died unexpectedly Tuesday, Feb. 23 at 5:15 a.m. at his home. He had been under the care of a physician.

Before his retirement he had been a shoe stitcher at the A. S. Kreider Shoe Company, Elizabethtown, for 30 years. He and his wife, Edna Dommel Zerphey, observed their 54th wedding anniversary last July.

Born in Lancaster County, a son of the late Peter and

Katie Loraw Zerphey, he resided in Mount Joy most of his life, and was a member of Trinity Evangelical Congregational church, Mt. Joy; the Mount Joy Leisure Club;

SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Susan Thome's fourth grade pupils have been writing some pollution rhymes as part of their class work.

Some are as follows:
Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet
Watching the cars go by
She said, "Oh what a shame!
The cars are to blame,
For some of this smog in my eye."
—James Shue

Mrs. Jack Horner
Put Jack in the corner
And gave him some DDT
He sprayed and sprayed and sprayed and sprayed so much
The birds couldn't see to flee.
—Greg Zimmerman

Little Miss Muffet sat on her tuffet
Eating her curds and whey,
She went for a drink,
And, boy, did it stink,
That really frightened her away!
—Brian Ney

Hey diddle, diddle,
The cat and the fiddle
The cow jumped over the

and a life member of the Mt. Joy Sportsmen's Assn.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by three daughters, Elizabeth K., wife of Merle Herr, Mount Joy R1; Gladys L., wife of Dale Graham, Columbia; and Marcelene wife of Paul McKinney, Manheim R2; four grandchildren; and a brother, Winfield L., of Mount Joy.

Services will be held from the Trinity Evangelical Congregational church on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in the Eberle cemetery.

She sniffed the smog,
Came down stiff as a log
And died when she hit the lagoon

Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall
Humpty Dumpty had a great fall
All the king's soldiers and all the kings men
Came to dump Humpty in the trash can.
—Jeff Crotsley

Old King Cole was a merry old soul,
A merry old soul was he,
He called for his drugs and he called for his trash
And he called for his oil cans three.
He ate the drugs, he kept the trash and threw away the oil cans three.
—Clyde Bitner

To Represent DHS At Parley

Nancy Jo Greenawalt and Heather Mumma have been selected to represent Donegal high school at the Pennsylvania Future Teachers of America Convention. The convention will be held at the Penn Harris Hotel in Harrisburg on Friday and Saturday, Mar. 5 and 6.

On Feb. 12 the club will sponsor a bake sale. Stands will be set up at Weis Market in Mount Joy, and at the First National Bank in Marietta.

Again this year, the members of FTA will be making Easter baskets for one of the nursing homes in the Donegal area.

at night by loosing big, specially-trained dogs which prowl the property, looking for intruders.

Such arrangements have been made in schools, too, apparently. Donegal district has been contacted by protective dog agencies as guards against vandalism and also as possible drug detectors.

Last week we mentioned that we once had a chance brief meeting and conversation with the late J. C. Penny.

This week we learned that Harold Endslow, Donegal neighborhood, a few years ago visited a big farm in Missouri where Penny and a partner had some fancy Angus breeding cattle — including a $100,000 bull.

Endslow recalls that Penny was a fine, gracious man, highly knowledgeable about the cattle and eager to show them to anyone interested. And — Endslo was very interested.

NewsMantoTalk At St. Marks

Hod Priest, Lancaster television newscaster, will be the guest speaker Sunday evening, Feb. 28, at St. Mark's Evening Evangelistic Service. The program will begin at 7 p.m. in the church sanctuary.

Accompanying Priest to Mt. Joy and providing the Musical portion of the service will be "The Victory Voices" — Beverly McCauley and Arlene Sload.

The service will be of special interest to the young people of the community, but all age groups are welcome.

beat out boys for a place on the team in the several non-contact sports, and if she wants to, there is little reason not to let her play.

Actually, of course, the real issue is much broader. This is the widespread stereotype of the female as non-athletic. The larger deprivation therefore is not so much denying a girl a place on a boys' team, as the lack of enough recognition or provision for her athletic energies.

Any man who has tried to keep up with a strong woman swimmer, or has tried to equal the gymnastic skill or stamina of a trained woman dancer, should realize that physical movement is as natural to the female as to the male.

It is wrong for society to disregard girls' impulse for athleticism and to allow school athletic programs for girls to atrophy.

HARD ACT TO FOLLOW

An "older generation" speaker during a Commencement Address recalled the anecdote about the young person who asked, "... what's polio?" Speaking to a college graduating class, he said, "Yes. What's polio? What's a typhoid epidemic? Or diphtheria, small pox, scarlet fever? This might be news to some of today's new graduates—but those scourges used to be very much with us. As one representative of the over-30 contingent. I discreetly remind our new graduates that it is, after all, this older generation — which includes your parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles — perhaps square at times and certainly often criticized these days—that has had something, somehow, to do with the fact that your life expectancy today has increased by about thirty

SOLUTION TO FIT THE PROBLEM

Another example of the way inflation can undermine basic principles and national integrity can be seen in the proposal that business firms—employers—be forced to pay a special tax if they grant wage increases beyond an approved guideline level. Comments The Wall Street Journal of this latest improvisation to control inflation: "Use of the tax system to exact penalties as part of an effort at economic manipulation is always a dubious practice. The fundamental purpose of any tax system should be to raise revenues, not to punish or reward people for their economic behavior. Punishment through taxation, particularly for something that is difficult to control, creates resentments that are the first step toward a breakdown in public acceptance of taxation."

As The Journal concludes, inflation is a hard problem, and "... often the only answer to a hard problem is a hard solution." The country seems to be drifting farther away from recognition of this truth.

Moreover, the Office of Education programs are only one portion of the total Federal spending for education programs. The total 1971 Nixon education budget was $10.7 billion, or a $900 million increase over President Johnson's 1969 request. This total for 1971 meant that Federal money for education was five times as much as it was in 1960 and twice as much as in 1965.

Whether or not one agrees or disagrees with this trend toward increased Federal expenditures for education, it is best seen in the context of overall spending for schools. Approximately $65 billion will be spent this school year at all levels of education public and private. Even if the dollars are adjusted for inflation, that figure is still nearly double the amount spent 10 years ago.

This is a fantastic accomplishment in one decade. With six percent of the world's population and less than one-third of its developed resources, the United States spends over one-half of all funds spent on education in the world. We do so because the American people know and believe in the value of education. It's a commitment that cannot be and is not being reversed.
