More than 75 million Americans ride bicycles, to work, to school, on vacation trips and just for fun. Early bikes were not till 1816, in Germany, was a 2-wheeler invented that could be steered. Early models had wood frames and wheel with iron tires. No wonder the English called them "boneshakers".

Between 1950 and 1960, long before our environmental quality was a "voiced" concern, electric utility companies purchased 90 per cent of the air quality control equipment sold in the United States.

The first sperm whale was captured in 1711 at sea by a Nantucket, Mass. whaler. This was the beginning of an industry which in 1846 numbered more than 700 whaling vessels.
