Indians Drop Two Games

Although they had not won a league game thus far this season, Ephrata's Mountaineers rose up with a vengeance Tuesday night and smote the Donegal Indians, 93 to 51.

It was "no contest," for in the 1st period the hosts opened to a 20 to 9 lead and widened the gap to 42-21 at the half. At the three-quarters, it was still wider, 64-36.

Casey Krause turned in the best effort for the Tribe scoring four field goals and hitting a perfect six for six at the foul line for a total of 14. Sargen had three and four for four to tally 10.

On the other hand, for Ephrata, Jim Bucher scored 31 and three other Mountaineers were in double figures.

Donegal's JV's lost their game 46 to 39.

Friday night, the Indians go to Manheim Twp. and next Tuesday night they are back home against E-town.

Held to only eight points in the first period, the Donegal Indians were never able to get going Friday night, Jan 14 and slid to a 64-50 defeat at the hands of invading Hempfield.

Although the second period was a 16-16 standoff, the half ended for the Knights, 29-24. At the three-quarter break, it was Hempfield, 45-38. The visitors outscored the Tribe 16 to 14 in the fourth.

Lou Sargen and Cliff Betty had 12 points each for Donegal. The former was a bit off his 13.75 point per game average and the latter a little above his 10.25. Drew Hostetter had nine and Casey Kraus had eight.

In the prelim, the Donegal JV's again turned the win trick, taking a 54-45 victory and sending their season's record to 7-3.

THE MEAT PACKAGE

These days meat is conveniently packaged to save time in the retail meat department for both the customer and the meat cutter. Extension consumer specialists at Penn State say the meat tray serves two functions — to provide rigidity to the package and to absorb fluids from the meat. Pulp trays meet both these requirements. The foam plastic tray is very popular and seems to be acceptable to both retailers and customers. However, the meat industry is looking for a package that will also provide visibility as well as rigidity and be adaptable for meats.
