The Worry Clinic
 by Dr. Geo. W. Crane

Jane is advertising her subconscious hatred for her own parents. This then is transferred to what the S.D.-S. rioters call "The Establishment," meaning lawful society. Far too many children have been reared with Dr. Spock "permissive" doctrine when they deserve the hairbrush treatment. Workers make up the "Establishment"; drones comprise the S.D.S.

CASE 0-548: Jane P. aged 17, was arrested. "Dr. Crane," the police officer told me, "Jane was with a group of rioting S. D. S. students.

"When we tried to apprehend her male companion, who had smashed an auto windshield, Jane struck a policeman over the head with a short length of iron pipe.

"And she screamed at the police, vowing to kill us all. "Dr. Crane, would you care to talk to her?"

"For she comes from a wealthy, suburban family but acts as if she is mentally 'sick' with her hatred of the 'Establishment.'"

BRAIN POLLUTION
 The worst pollution now threatening America is the Russian type of "brain pollution," which has been troubling campuses and cities for the past decade.

Smoke and water contamination are bad, but pollution of the minds of young people is far worse.

For the latter leads to immorality, paganism, destruction of our great freedom, as outlined in our CONSTITUTION, and ultimate dictatorship.

When I sat down with Jane she was defiant and doubtless felt herself a martyr.

As we conversed, she showed a good command of English and proved to be from a cultured family.

Indeed, her father was a prominent attorney. But she calmly informed informed me that she and her comrades were dedicated to the complete overthrow of what she termed the "Establishment."

"Jane," I inquired, "who looked after you in childhood illnesses and furnished your food, clothing, as well as schooling?"

"Oh, my parents did, of course," she replied with an angry toss of her frizzly hair-do.

"But if they get in our way, they will be shot down like the rest of you capitalists!"

"Well," I continued, "if your mother and father were in the sights of your own rifle, would you pull the trigger?"

"Certainly," she replied emphatically, "for they are the enemies of mankind."

You readers know what would happen to such juveniles if they tried to riot in Russia.

They'd be sent to the salt mines of Siberia for life!

So why do you think Jane has followed the Communistic drivel here in America?

Could her protest against the "Establishment," meaning "Law and Order," the police, and government, be an indirect attack on her parents?

For atheists often are the children of clergymen, whose parents forced too much stodgy religion down their throats in childhood when they dared not protest.

Jane was an "only" child till she was 5. Then twin brothers arrived and stole the spotlight from her.

And she was especially hostile to her mother, for the latter quite naturally preempted much of the attention of Jane's daddy.

Then the twin boys further demoted Jane from the Prima Donna role to that of a member of the "chorus," as it were.

Like a dope addict, children can become so hungry for a continuation of the family spotlight, that they go berserk when deprived of this adulation!

Thailand - Anna's Siam

One of the most affluent countries of Southeast Asia, Thailand is riding the crest of an unprecedented economic boom. Shiny new cars and motorcycles jostle each other on Bangkok's noisy streets. In the lush green countryside, peasants tending rice fields may also own transistor radios. Margaret Baker has filmed it all, from Thailand's respected monarchs, the Royal Palace and the ceremony of the trooping of the colors, to the Communist infiltrated northeast where citizens fete the monks at the time of Tod Katin.
