INFLUENCE

Are you easily influenced by the feelings of those around you? If you are, you may find yourself being pushed one way and then another by the moods of others until your own state of mind is affected, and you're borrowing too many burdens. It is right to care, to be concerned, to want to help, but allowing others to set the quality of your own life is not fair to you nor to them. You will not be influenced by the negative moods of others if you stand firm in your own positive attitudes toward life.

WISDOM

Many of the finest qualities available to us as human beings seem to stand in reserve ready to be used when we're ready to use them. We speak of someone as being very wise but actually very few people are wise all the time. You can undoubtedly recall past experiences that required wisdom on your part, and the wisdom was there, and you acted wisely. On the other hand, you may also remember times when wisdom was lacking and you wished you had acted differently. The quality of wisdom is always available, but it is up to us to call upon it.

FILIBUSTER RECORD

On Aug. 29, 1957, Senator Strom Thurmond established the record to date for the longest speech by a senator—24 hours, 18 minutes.

WASHINGTON MARCH

On Aug. 28, 1963, 200,000 persons marched in Washington, D. C., in support of Negro demands for equal rights.

'PAPPY' BOYINGTON

On Aug. 29, 1945, Major Gregory (Pappy) Boyington was found alive in a prisoner of war camp in Japan.
