WHAT One Person CAN DO

JESUS SILVA, CIRCUS PRIEST

What do you do if you are the "father" of 2,000 homeless boys? You start a circus, if you are a Spaniard named Jesus Silva.

After founding Bemposta, a self-governing democratic community in Spain composed entirely of orphan boys, Father Silva started a circus school in 1964. He trained the orphans to be circus performers for two years until he felt they had reached professional standards.

"There are many degrees of professionalism," says Father Silva. "Some professionals are terrible. We knew we were getting better and better, and our circus became perfect as time went by."

"Los Muchachos" circus began by performing in Barcelona; then its schedule expanded until it now gives performances all over the world. The Spanish priest and his boys use the circus to bring to the world a message of peace and brotherhood as taught "by the most revolutionary messenger in the world, the only authentic peacemaker, Christ."

The first act of each performance by Los Muchachos concludes with a prayer for peace. Father Silva explains that the young performers believe, as he does, that "peace is possible if men are capable of extending their hands, especially if young people of the world begin by extending their hands."

Jesus Silva and Los Muchachos are using a circus to be instruments of God's peace. Each of us can work for peace and brotherhood, no matter what our station in life. That means, first of all, doing our job competently. Only then can we effectively introduce God's love to those around us.
