Over The Back Fence

by Max Smith

Armyworms are showing up in many parts of the county and eating various types of crops and plants. These are not new insects to this area and all farmers and gardeners should be on the alert for them. They do most of their feeding at night or on cloudy days and therefore, are hard to detect. We have reports of these worms feeding on both corn and ripening barley; they are not very selective on their eating habits and will consume most any type of green plant. Sprays of Sevin or Malathion should give good protection and could be needed to save the crop. Farmers with no-till corn fields need to be very alert to observe the numbers of armyworms; the mulch and ground cover with this type of corn growing provides good conditions for many types of insects.

Many property owners will be noticing the results of bagworm infestation in the next month or so. Early June is the egg hatching time from the old bags left on the trees. The young worms emerge from the old bag and as they feed they spin new protective bags which enlarge as they grow. They continue to feed from these bags and will defoliate many trees and shrubs. Control may be obtained by picking and burning the bags from small trees or by spraying with Sevin, Diazinon, or Cygon two or three times at 10-day intervals when the bags are small; this could be later this month and the early part of July. In previous years we get many calls about the bagworms feeding on trees during late summer. The best time to kill them is in June and early July when the worms are small.

June is recognized as

Dairy Month throughout the country, an appropriate time for all of us to pay homage to the dairy cow, an animal that produces one of nature's most perfect foods. The dairy industry is the largest single farm income in Lancaster County as well as the State of Pennsylvania. The dependable dairy cow grazes the hills and valleys; she consumes the entire plant of corn and hay crops, and converts them into milk for human consumption. Many urban folks do not realize the source of dairy products offered in stores today. The dairy cow produces large amounts of vitamins and nutrients for human consumption from fibrous feeds humans cannot digest. Dairying is most vital to the economy of this county as well as the entire country. We salute all dairymen for their essential contribution to the food and fiber production of this country for the benefit of everyone.

Increased consumer attention is needed at this time to keep the pork, beef and egg producer in business. I'm afraid that too many non-farm people are too much interested in lower food prices regardless of what they have to pay for other items and services. The depressing price at this time of beef, hogs, and eggs will mean that some producers will go broke and out of business. When a product sells for less than the cost of production, that business is doomed. When this happens to any extent, a shortage develops and prices go much higher and costs the consumer more. If every household would take note of this serious situation now in our red meat and egg situation, and consume more of these products, no doubt prices would come back

Joyce-ettes Hold

Covered Dish Picnic

The final membership meeting of the year was held by the Mount Joy Joyceettes in the form of a covered dish picnic. Mrs. Lavon Harnish conducted her last meeting as president of the organization.

Following the standing committee reports, Mrs. Crystal Fackler announced the winners of the Joyceette Athletic trophies and the scholarship which are awarded to Donegal high school seniors. Mrs. Sue Gantz reported on the success of the Memorial Day Princess contest.

Several thank-you notes were read by Lois Getty from folks who had attended the 75 Plus Banquet.

In looking to the future, it was announced that a treat again will be taken to the Mount Joy playgrounds the last week of the playground season. A summer family picnic has been planned for July 20. It will be held at the Messiah Home with the children there, and will feature a softball game after the picnic. Work is progressing on the Christmas Bazaar, and also on plans for the county social and area meeting of the State Jaycettes.

The first big project for Fall will be a garage sale on September 27.

The last items of business concerned additional donations to local organizations and projects. It was voted to give contributions to the Community Council, Project DIG, the library, and the Mount Joy Jaycees.

The next membership meeting will be a dinner meeting on September 17 at the American Legion. All former Joyceettes, and prospective members are especially invited to attend.

enough to at least cover costs. Also, it is due time that the "middle man" and retailers lower their prices to the public.
