R for your child's safety

Dr. Albert H. Domm

Do your children have adequate protection from the danger of electrical shock that can lurk right in your own home?

"Most households have electrical deathtraps into which small children can stumble in the twinkling of an eye," says Dr. Albert H. Domm, child safety specialist and medical director of the Prudential Insurance Company.

He urges all parents to inspect their homes for electrical danger spots and take prompt corrective action if any exist.

Dr. Domm suggests the following

- safeguards: (1) Keep all electric outlets covered when not in use. Curious children can stick conductive objects into uncovered sockets. (2) Be sure you have no worn extension cords. (3) Place all electrical machinery and appliances out of the reach of toddlers. (4) Light switches, electrical appliances, or outlets should not be within reach of the bathtub.

"The bathtub requires special attention from parents since many electrical accidents take place there," he said. "Wet hands and feet increase the possibility of shock."

If such a mishap occurs, shut the current off immediately and remove the victim from the contact using a stick or gloves, but not barehanded. Call an ambulance or doctor and administer artificial respiration until help arrives.
