

Charles Spring Water Flow Back Near Normal

Some of Mount Joy's water problems have disappeared!

For some unknown reason, Charles spring, which feeds into Mount Joy's system west of the borough, has returned to near normal production, it was reported Monday night at Borough Council meeting.

About two weeks ago, after becoming almost dry, the spring began to return and water now is in good supply.

Engineers speculated that an underground "feeder" stream may have collapsed. It may now have cleared, it was ventured. Also, recent rains have helped replenish ground water. During the late summer and early fall, there was rainfall, but most was hard, dashing and ran off as surface water.

Borough Manager Joseph Bateman said that because of a new re-cycling installation at National-Standard, east of the borough, a normal consumption there is expected to be cut 50 percent to maybe 150,000 gallons per day.

Newly drilled wells west of the borough along Donegal Springs Road are not expected to be "on line" until next Fall.

children, Phoebe has given her entire adult life to nursing. She says, "A feeling of nostalgia comes to me when I review those happy years I spent with those precious children at the Crippled Children's Hospital.

"I shall cherish them always in my memories. To me, nursing is one of the most rewarding of professions, as it has given me indescribable blessings in knowing I have helped someone who needed physical, psychological and even spiritual care."

Miss Sentz plans to continue in service in volunteer work such as Meals-on-Wheels, etc.

time is being given for a nickel.

They suggested that 30 minutes time be given for five cents.

It was emphasized by the merchants that customers are unhappy and that they have threatened to take their business out of Mount Joy. Yingst said that the merchants feel that council acted in haste without consulting with them.

G. Walter Sloan said that he knows of no other community which charges a nickel for only five minutes.

The question was raised as to whether or not Mount Joy's 20-year-old meters can be adjusted and revamped to charge the suggested "30 for 5" rate.

Formerly, the meters gave 12 minutes for one cent, an hour for five and 120 for 10. By the new ordinance, the meters give 12 minutes for five and 120 for 10 cents.

One councilman said that the merchants "are going to be stuck with the meters as they are for a month or two, whatever council decides."

The new rates were voted October 14, changing of the meter mechanism was begun at once and now is virtually completed.

critical, then the situation needs strong counter action, even if it's taken right out of western television.

Betty Groff told us the other day that her recently-issued cookbook, "Good Earth and Country Cooking", is to go into its second printing.

It's something special when cook book sell more than a minimum. A lot of people write 'em but it's only a few that the public really buys in any number.

As things stand, those people who have first editions of Betty's book may have something more valuable than they anticipated.

In the first place, the book is just plain interesting reading, even if you're not especially interested in cooking. In the second place, if you are, it's a treasure chest of information. Now, the book itself just might be a collector's item.
