problems of home ownership.

Further, they are finding that there is more information available on the subject than they had imagined.

For instance, it is not a case of "no sunshine - no heat." Some sun once every four days will keep figuratively speaking, a fire on the hearth.

New bus schedules are being published by CTC and it is expected that a new supply will be made available throughout the community later this month.

For the first time, Donegal high school this season at its home games is using a 'crowd control' system.

Late comers must wait until timeouts, or other breaks in the playing before being admitted. Some people are not happy, but those already seated, wanting to enjoy the game are pleased.

It is interesting to note that in York county the league requires that a similar rule Farm Show week is January 13-16. Only school excused absences to attend will be for those students who are participating.

Although winter weather is beginning to settle down on the community, Mount Joy has a hard core of tennis players who continue to play on the borough courts.

As the days begin to shorten, more use is made of the lights. The long-awaited coin operated time switch is now in good working order and 1 hour of lights is provided for $2. Quarters are accepted.

This and That

But the two concerts had one thing in common: the audiences at both felt well-repaid for being there. The music was beautiful, and Miss Dorothy Schock, director, and the participating musicians deserve commendation for the performance and dedication.

The Cloisters re-visited! It is always interesting to visit the Cloisters at Ephrata, whether it be just to walk through the quaint old buildings, listen to the Vorspeil concert on a warm summer night, or attend the annual Christmas program in the simple "saal" or chapel.

This latter thing we did last Tuesday night as guests of Akron friends. After a "Christmassy" dessert in their lovely home, we made the trek in the cold night air to the quaint and rustic "saal".

The program was music and scripture. The Linden Girls' School bell choir performed beautifully; the Cloisters Chorus sang several numbers; and the audience joined with the chorus in the singing of many beloved carols. It was all very simple but very lovely. The church was lighted by candles, and the chorus wore the long white robes which were the garb of the Cloister brotherhood.

Following the program, we left the chapel by way of the Cloisters kitchen, where a bright fire glowed on the hearth, and a long, narrow table was set with earthen dishes. On our way to the building where hot mulled Annunciation and the cider and home made Nativity cookies were served, we remember. It was an evening to passed living tableaux of the
