Scouts at Jan. camp

The fifth annual Operation Frozen Trail, winter exercise for Boy Scout patrols of the Western District, will be held Saturday, January 18, at J. Edward Mack Scout Reservation north of Brickerville.

About 400 Scouts and adult leaders are expected to take part. They represent Scout units from Lancaster, Columbia, Elizabethtown, Mount Joy, Manheim, Mountville, Silver Springs, Rohrerstown, Landisville, Maytown, Marietta, and other areas of Lancaster Co.

The public is invited to attend the Frozen Trail competition, which will begin with registration at 9 a.m. January 18. About half an hour later, the Scout patrols will be on the trail, each attempting to outdo the others in completing a rugged cross-country race while overcoming obstacles along the way to the destination.

Each patrol uses a sled, cart, travois or palaquin that its members have constructed themselves. The patrol members serve as "sled dogs" to propel it to the finish line, across snow, ice, or bare ground. As they make their trek, the competing patrols are given problems that can be solved by using a variety of scouting or woodlands skills such as map and compass reading, first aid, and the techniques of crossing rough terrain.

Donald W. Peters, Columbia, is chairman of the 1975 Frozen Trail event. Arthur C. Lord, Lancaster, is program chairman for the Western District. Also assisting with arrangements are Robert M. Rogers, East Petersburg, Western District chairman for Scouting, and Clayton Garrett, Jr., Manheim, district scout executive.

Scouts and leaders who participate in the 1975 Operation Frozen Trail will receive specially designed patches to wear on their uniforms. They can earn "Polar bear hero" strips to wear with the patches by camping out at Mack Scout Reservation on Friday night, January 17, then taking part in the competition the following day.

The 1974 Frozen Trail competition was won by the Viking patrol of Troop 129, Rohrerstown.

'74 grads: come for polio dose

Sadie Brooks, school nurse at Donegal High School, would like to remind 1974 graduates of Donegal High School who received two doses of polio vaccine last spring, that, for optimal immunization, they should receive another dose.

The additional dose can be obtained at the high school now. 1974 graduates should call the high school (653-1871) and make an appointment with Ms. Brooks.
