DHS work-study program is big success

Donegal School District's Diversified Occupations Program has completed its first full year of operation very successfully. This program is operated and sponsored through Lanc. County Area Vo-Tech Schools.

Diversified Occupations is an extension of a student's vocational education that combines classroom instruction in employability skills with half day work experience in a student's chosen field. After a student is placed on the job, they are supervised by Joe Sciortino, Donegal's Diversified Occupations Coordinator. Mr.

Sciortino visits the student on the job and confers with the employer as to his progress, etc.

This school year there are 21 students attending classes half days and working in various occupational areas the other half. "This program gives a graduating senior a head start in obtaining full-time employment in the field of his choice," explains Mr. Sciortino. "By training during his high school education and during summers with an employer, that employer most likely will hire that student full-time upon graduation." Why? The students employability is increased tenfold over that of other applicants because this student has worked possibly up to 2 years for that employer before graduation. During this time he has been trained in the total operation of that occupational field, learning the way duties are to be performed and freeing the employer of the orientation process of hiring a new full-time employee. In other words, an employer can fit and mold a student into the workings of his business, before he is hired as a full-time employee.

If an employer is interested in the program he may contact Mr. Sciortino at the high school (653-1871) for further information.

The following employers have participated in the D.O. Program at Donegal. Donegal thanks these employers for their patience and cooperation.
