

CHOICE BITS

Let me give so much time to the improvement of myself that I shall have no time to criticize others.

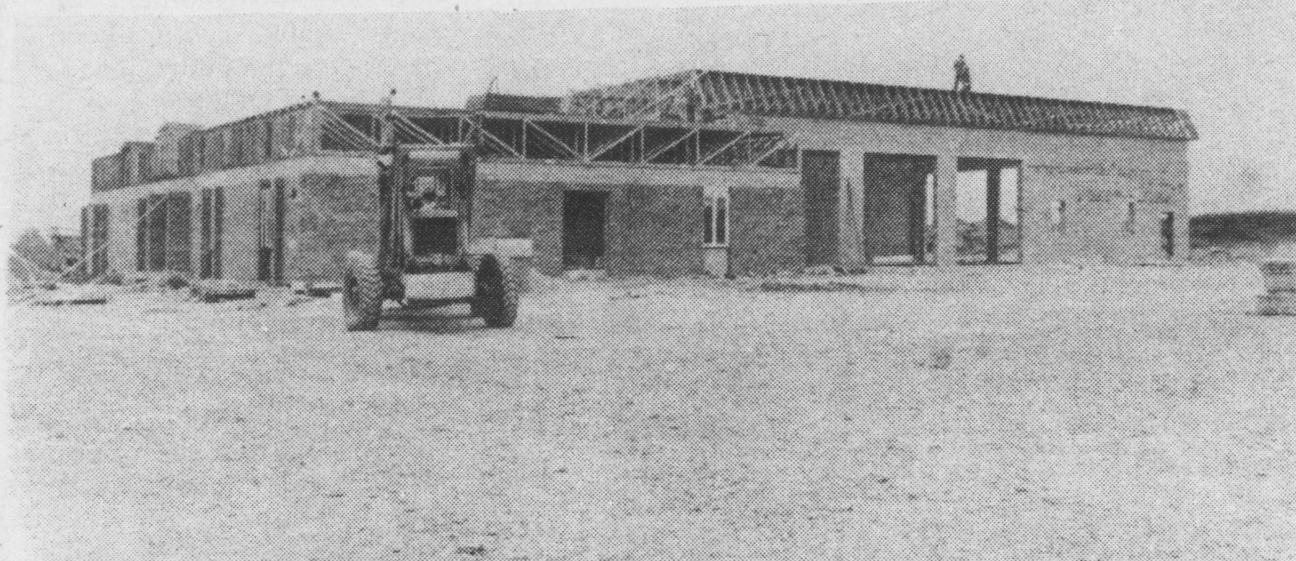

If you were arrested for being a Christian, would there be enough evidence to convict you?

Service and integrity within the means of every family.

How may we be of service to you?

Molly Fry tells of work as criminology intern

by Hazel Baker

Molly Fry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fry, 55 N. Chestnut St., Marietta, is a senior at Indiana University and is majoring in criminology. Criminology, according to Webster's Dictionary, is defined as "the scientific study of crime as a social phenomenon, of criminals, and of penal treatment." She is currently serving an internship with the State Crime Commission. She is one of 35 interns selected by the college from 65 applicants.

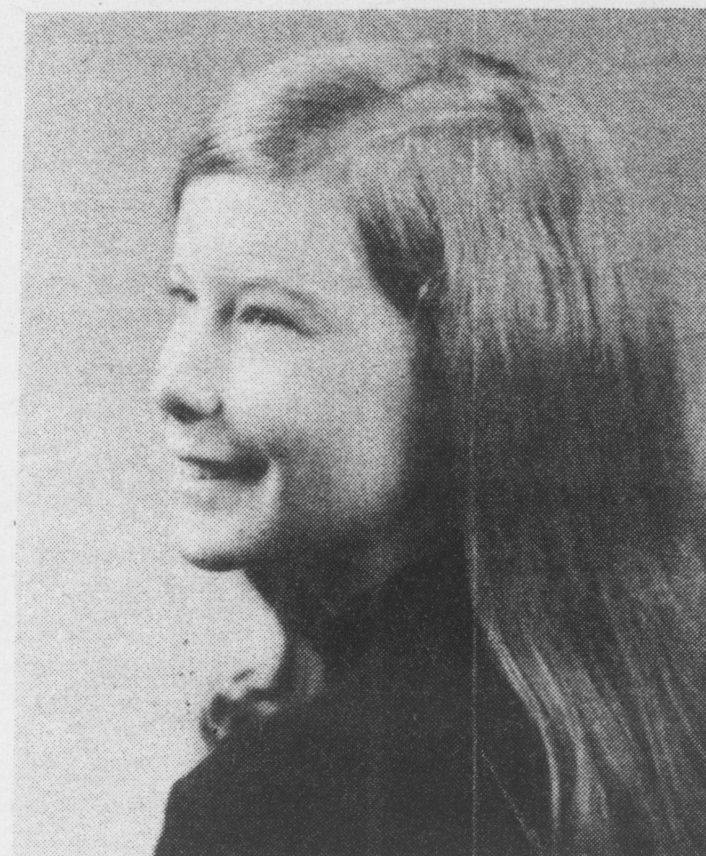

According to Miss Fry, there are presently only 14 policewomen in the state and seven in the current class at the Academy. More women should be in this field. Miss Fry states, "This is one reason I chose this profession, and because I'm not the type to sit behind a desk and deal with one class of people. In this area I will be communicating with all ages and all levels." She hopes to try to make changes within the system after graduation for the betterment of society. If she had to choose again, Molly stated, she would definitely take this course. As in all professions at this time, jobs are scarce in criminology, but the needs are there if graduates are willing to look for a job.

Political influence has no effect in this civil service field. The Crime Commission enters cases when asked by municipal or county officials. Only a small portion of cases can be acted upon although intelligence is compiled on many subjects.

The main function of the Commission is to investigate organized crime, but it does not prosecute.

The commission is rather young, and it has a small voice, but says Molly, it will grow, and criminals will be treated with more knowledge as time goes by.
