

Sargen gets publicity in Georgia through Susquehanna Bulletin

by J. L. Biesecker

Who knows how far the Susquehanna Bulletin travels or by what manner it gets there. E. Scott Sargen found that a recent issue made its way to Macon, Georgia and the Federal Office of Tobacco, Alcohol and Firearms.

In that issue, a picture of Scott and his fish smoke house had appeared. When the copy of S.B. reached Macon, authorities took great interest. It seems that in the picture of Scott standing amidst the hickory smoke and fish, he looked very much like a man wanted for gun-running.

To make matters worse was the fact that the wanted man was known to be a person who smoked his own fish. A Federal agent was dispatched to the Sargen home where the fishy matter was soon straightened out. After the smoke of coincidence cleared, the Federal agent went back to looking for his man and Scott went back to smoking his fish - only this time with no pictures please!

Golden anniversary for Mr. & Mrs. Kraus

Charles M. and Pauline Kraus celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Tuesday, in their home at 54 N. Chestnut St., Marietta.

Another honorary party, organized by the couple's grandchildren, was held at the Florin Fire Hall on Sunday.

Charles and Pauline were married at the Elizabethville Camp Meeting. Reverend Weir, of the Columbia United Brethren Church, was attending the camp meeting during his vacation. The young couple followed their pastor to the meeting for the wedding ceremony.

Mr. Kraus, who turned 80 this July worked at the Marietta Post Office for 47 and a half years. He has been athletic all his life. In his youth he was a great tennis player and coach of the Marietta High School basketball team. Lately he has restricted himself to hunting, fishing, and working in his huge garden.

He is the only remaining charter member of the Big Round Top Hunting Lodge. He is also an officer in the Marietta Boat Club and an honorary member of the Marietta Lions.

Pauline Kraus cans, freezes, and preserves the produce from her husband's garden. Mrs. Kraus also tats, knits and crochets afghans, doilies, tablecloths, and even bedspreads. She makes embroidered hemlines and pillow covers as special gifts.

Mrs. Kraus is a crossword puzzle expert. She was a member of the championship winning girls basketball team in her senior year at Columbia High School.

The couple have two children: Jane E. Simmons and Charles M. Kraus, Jr.

They have six grandchildren: Lt. Michael Simmons, Constance J. Simmons, Mark A. Simmons, Charles A. Simmons, Pamela A. Kraus Bucher and Charles M. Kraus, III.

Their first great grandchild is Charles M. Kraus IV.
