Well informed tour guides explain the many facets of brewing in the upper and lower levels of Lancaster County's oldest brewery. Giant vats are still in place within the Lagering Cellar. The fermented brew was placed in wooden casks in order to age for a period of 30 days before being drawn off into smaller kegs which were stored 43 feet below the street surface. Temperature remains around 50 degrees year around in the Catacombs.

A million safe hours

Employees of Armstrong Armstrong Cork Company Carpet Plant at Marietta have set a milestone in industrial safety by accumulating more than one million man-hours of work without any lost time for injuries.

This safety mark, which was reached at noon last Friday, represents 180 days during which no disabling injuries were sustained. Plant officials said this achievement more than triples the seven-year-old previous plant record.

According to R.A. Graff, plant manager, "The success of the program is attributed to employees' awareness and participation in observing safety rules and procedures." He noted that several equipment modifications and procedural changes suggested by employees contributed to the new safety record.

In recognition of the employees' outstanding safety record, all active personnel at the plant will be given the opportunity to choose individual awards from a selection of gifts, to honor the occasion.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

I recently read in the Lancaster paper that Donegal High School has a new "liberal" policy concerning pregnant students. Pregnant senior girls are now allowed to study at home and graduate on time.

I was unaware before this that pregnant students were made to leave school at all and this is very upsetting to me.

Would a pregnant woman ever be forced to leave a job, college, her church, or any other institution she belonged to because of her condition? Why are our high schools such an exception? Are they afraid pregnancy is contagious or what?

Perhaps most pregnant high school students would prefer to leave school, but I would like to see a young woman stand up for her rights and teach high schools that they can't treat their students like children forever.

Replies to 'liberated woman'

Dear Editor:

TO: "Liberated Woman" (Here, there and everywhere):

I wasn't going to join the fray,
but I've decided to have my say.
I'll give Womens' Lib one more clout
(the merits of which I seriously doubt).

All those so-called liberated gals
out mooing and shoving about like cows,
are making me lose my cool
and wondering if it isn't all so much bull!

You call us "slaves" and chained to the kitchens you cry,
If you're selling ideas like that— I don't buy!
Trade career for wife?
NOT ON YOUR LIFE!

Be creative and "do" something you say,
If you don't mind, I'd rather do it my way.
See those two kids which we've been blest?
Hey, that's creativity at its best!

It's very plain for all to see,
that "liberated" doesn't have her MRS degree!
Tis a pity she'll never understand what it means to love and be loved by a man.

Poor "liberated" is a victim of her own little game,
Why she's not even liberated enough to sign her name!
Now it's time to end this whimsical tale,
And, by the way, sign me....

Liberated Gail
(Mrs. R. E. Hawthorne)

Dear Editor:

It is said that "liberated woman" missed the point of my letter in the last issue of the Susquehanna Bulletin that being, although I love doing what I am doing, I do not feel all women should be confined to the kitchen, nor for that matter, even belong in the kitchen.

I said I enjoy writing and if I didn't make myself clear, then I will now. As a fully liberated woman, I do have a job (part-time) as correspondent for several newspapers. If the time ever comes when I prefer to give up my freedom, I'll go to work full-time.

Also, methinks milady protests too much. She contends to be liberated, but I find not to the point where she feels completely convinced of it. Witness she is not apparently "liberated" to announce her "convictions" with her signature.

I remain free to be!
Mrs. Zelda L. Heisey

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Please keep the paper's name "Susquehanna Bulletin". I think it is very appropriate.
