Dr. Russey and Sharon Steckbeck

Steckbeck researches new energy sources

A Mount Joy student is currently gaining first-hand experience at Juniata College in energy research, a field beginning to play a major role in determining how the world will live during coming years.

Sharon Steckbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Steckbeck of 204 N. Barbara St., Mount Joy, is one of five Juniata students to engage in energy exploration projects for 10 weeks this summer on the college campus.

Miss Steckbeck and her co-workers are involved in a research project dealing with the conversion of coal to liquid fuels. The students are investigating the properties of "synthoil" an unusual oil-like product which is being produced on an experimental basis at a U. S.

Bureau of Mines coal research station near Pittsburgh.

In addition to analyzing the make-up of the synthoil in regards to overall safety and precautions for use, the researchers are also examining the mechanism by which synthoil is made.

According to Dr. William E. Russey, professor of chemistry and co-director of the project, if the workers can pinpoint exactly how the catalyst works in the synthoil process, they should then be able to make a better and more efficient catalyst.

Guiding Miss Steckbeck in her research endeavors are two members of the college's chemistry faculty, Dr. Russey and Dr. Judith W. Lerman.

A junior chemistry major, Miss Steckbeck is active in Deputation Club, the Chem Club and intramural volleyball. She was graduated from Donegal High School in 1973.

Bateman summarizes current boro projects

Joseph Bateman, Borough Manager of Mount Joy, has announced that a request has been made to have the Westview development inspected by the borough manager and by the borough engineer, in order to accept the streets and park formally into the borough.

The borough will issue its second newsletter to residents in October.

To expediate per capita tax collections, the Administrative and Finance Committee of the Borough Council is proposing that all landlords with three or more dwelling units register their tenants with the borough tax collector.

Construction will start in early September on re-surfacing the tennis courts and building a new parking lot in the borough park. If weather is good the projects should be completed by mid-October.

Planning for the 1976 budget has already begun. Borough Council will discuss the budget at their October meeting. A draft of the proposed budget should be on display by early November.

A proposal to establish a shade tree commission for Mount Joy Borough has gone back to the Public Works Committee of the Council for revisions.

Music lessons available at E-town

Elizabethtown College's Department of Music is making available private lessons in piano, voice, woodwinds, brass and strings through its Preparatory Division this year, beginning Sept. 4.

The lessons, which last 15 weeks, are available to both children and adults, according to Mrs. Erica Ellenberger, recently appointed director of the Prep Division.

The instruction will be given by members of the faculty in the music department and by student teachers under supervision of a member of the faculty. There is a lower fee for student-taught lessons.

A new offering this year will be a weekly piano class for beginners using the College's electronic piano laboratory.

According to Mrs. Ellenberger, such piano classes have proven to be a good way to begin piano study because the students are stimulated by each other as well as by the teacher. Enrollment in each class will be limited to six students grouped according to age.

Mrs. Ellenberger, who will teach the piano class as well as administer the program, is a graduate of the University of Rochester and Indiana University.

A piano teacher for 10 years, she has been chairman of the piano department at the Community Music School in St. Louis and a member of the music faculty at Lebanon Valley College.

More information about the Preparatory Division is available from Mrs. Ellenberger at the College, the telephone number is 367-1151, Ext. 207.

School Bus Safety Week, September 2-8

To alert motorists that children soon will be going back to school, State Secretary of Transportation Jacob Kassab today announced that Pennsylvania will join the rest of the nation in observing National School Bus Safety Week, Sept. 2 to 8.

"Each year too many children are injured because of motorists who either fail to obey or are unfamiliar with traffic laws regarding when and when not to pass a school bus," Kassab said.

The only circumstances in which a driver may pass a stopped school bus is when the bus is loading or unloading children directly in front of a school, or when a bus is stopped on the opposite side of a highway when a physical barrier exists.
