Block sale in Marietta

Perfect weather brought crowds to the first block sale organized by residents of the 200 block of West Market Street in Marietta, last Saturday.

About twenty residents of the block set out their wares on sidewalk tables. Buyers came looking for bargains from eight in the morning until four in the afternoon.

They had their choice of everything from hot dogs and soft pretzels to antiques and potted plants.

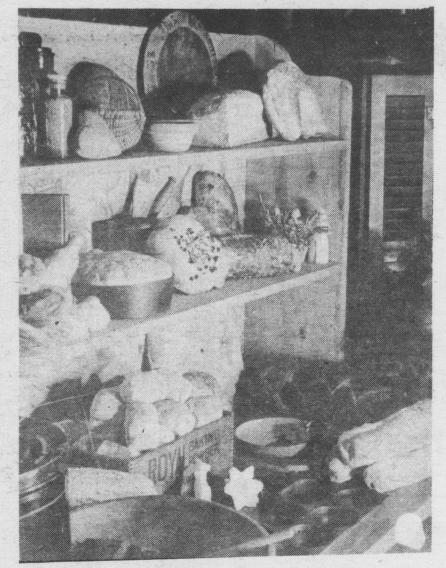

Operators of the stands were satisfied the results of this first block sale, organized by Mrs. Mary Ruby, and are talking about the next block sale in April, 1976.

The expression, "one man's trash is another man's treasure" was well illustrated at the sale. Objects were grabbed up that sellers wanted to get rid of. Neighbors bought from each other. It was reported that some buyers purchased items they had once given as presents.

The consensus of the amateur merchants was that they had had fun and profit.

Mrs. Brown's display

Kitty Brown's herb breads to be displayed at flower show

Kitty Brown's herb breads will be on display this weekend at the Standard Flower Show in Lancaster.

The display includes flat arab bread, french bread, egg and braided egg bread, Danish coffeering, rye and caraway bread, brioche, raisin bread, white bread, cinnamon bread, bagels, assorted rolls, and salt sticks.

Herbs used in her breads include basil, rosemary, dill, fennil, poppy seeds, caraway seeds and sesame seeds.

Mrs. Brown uses a wooden mixing bowl, a duck-feather baster, and sometimes a hearthstone in her baking. For the exhibit, she also used some unusual ingredients.

The Browns' home near Marietta features an old-fashioned wood stove as well as a modern kitchen.

Molds of herb butter will also be on display. Unfortunately, visitors to the show will not get a chance to sample the bread. The display is for educational purposes only.

The show will be held at the Farm and Home Foundation Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the article by J. L. Biesecker entitled "The hunters of America are being hunted". He really points out the difference between a slob hunter and a good sportsman. I couldn't agree with him more. It's about time sportsmen start to police their own kind. A game violator causes trouble all around, and should be dealt with under the game laws.

There are a few things that weren't mentioned in the article that I think should be brought up. The first thing is, all hunters should try to join a local sports club and help with their many projects. These include raising and stocking pheasants, planting trees for wildlife cover, winter feeding programs, habitat improvement, and letting the general public know we're taking care of wildlife all year 'round, not just in hunting season. Another thing they can do is attend Federation meetings and help to work with the Game Commission. You will also be helping to pass resolutions introduced by the different sports clubs in Pennsylvania. These resolutions often become actual game laws. Last, and most important is, if you want our sport to survive, join the National Rifle Association (NRA). Strength is in numbers, and by joining these clubs sportsmen will be kept well informed and will be able to help fight the anti-hunting lies that are being'used against us.

> Sincerely, Donald E. Zeller, Pres. Mount Joy Sportsmen's Assoc.

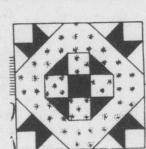

Vice-President, Federated Sportsmen of Lancaster Co.
