HON. JAMES P. STERRETT, of Pittsburgh, has been appointed by Governor Hartranft to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Bench of the State caused by the death of Judge Williams.

Hayes and Wheeler.

The electoral count was completed on Friday morning at about 5 o'clock, and Hayes was declared President for four years from the 5th of March.

The officers were sworn in at 12 o'clock on Sunday and the regular inauguration ceremonies take place on Monday. An extra session of the Senate has been called and is now in session.

Made Insane by Hair Dye.

The New Milford Ray of Conn., says that Mrs. Miranda Ruby, a crazy woman who has lived in that village many years, and whose insanity was manifested by always wearing a letter envelope on her bonnet or tied to her parasol, or in some other harmless way, doubts if any one would be likely to surmise the cause of her insanity.

Not Willing to Divide.

James L. Winfrey, on returning to his home in De Witt, Mo., after an absence of several years, found that his wife had replaced him with Mayo Hall. Winfrey did not care to recover his wife, but he did want his furniture, and went with a wagon to remove it.

Diaz Elected President of Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, February 18, via HAVANA, February 25.—General Diaz has been elected President and Ignacio Vallarta chief justice. The trip of General Diaz to the northern states has been deferred, his presence being necessary at the capital.

Unpleasant Tenants.

The other day Sir Richard Wallace, the well-known philanthropist in Paris, was obliged to bring an action against one of his tenants on the Boulevard des Italiens to have a number of lions removed. Now he has served a notice upon the same eccentric occupant that he must carry off, within twenty-four hours, a family of crocodiles which have been installed there, to the inconvenience, and even terror, of the rest of the tenants.

BOSTON, February 26.—Joseph Brigham a wealthy gentleman of this city, was robbed to-day of $40,000 in notes, stocks and bonds at his residence, 1,038 Washington street. Two men called and inquired for him and while one engaged him in conversation in the parlor the other slipped up into his room and succeeded in possessing himself of a small trunk in which the securities were and escaped from the house.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, February 2nd.—Yesterday morning the deaf and dumb institution, some miles distant from this city, was totally destroyed by fire.—There was no loss of life, and all the 153 pupils escaped without serious injury.—Total loss estimated at $400,000. No insurance.

Frederick Newman, the fireman who was rescued after eight hours' imprisonment under the falling debris of Fox's theatre, has since died of his injuries.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 28th, 1877. I suppose there is little doubt in the minds of the people concerning the Presidency. Hayes is everywhere spoken of as the President-elect, the Cabinet slate having been several times remodelled for him, but he himself is silent on the subject.—His ideas, and those of his family, however, are quite manifest from the fact that Mrs. Hayes is now in Cincinnati having her inaugural costume prepared by the leading firm of that city.

The Inaugural Dress.

The inaugural dress will be of elegant black silk, cut 'princesse' in style, and will be high in the throat with long sleeves, and, of course, full train. It will be trimmed with black velvet, blue satin and Valenciennes lace, and, although rich and elegant, is pronounced very plain. It costs $500. The evening or reception dress, will be of quaker gray, with corsage waist, square neck, demi-sleeves and full train.—It is to be trimmed with Valenciennes lace, fringe and flowers, and will cost $300.—The morning dress will be of blue cashmere, handsomely trimmed with silk of same shade, with fringe to match, with demi-train and 'princesse' polonaise. The duty of taking charge of the removal of the Governor's family to Washington has been assigned to Colonel Lou Wier, of Cincinnati, a member of the Governor's staff, who is now busily engaged in completing the arrangements.

Much has been written and said about the accommodations of the four men, Wells, Anderson, Casenave and Kenner, members of the Louisiana Returning Board, who are spending this month in the custody of the Sergeant-at-arms of the House of Representatives at the Capitol.—They may be seen any afternoon now about five o'clock, when the Congressmen have gone home to dinner, sitting quietly around one of the restaurant tables in the House wing basement of the Capitol, discussing, with apparent relish, as good and well-prepared dinner as can be found at any hotel. Three of them are very ordinary looking men—might pass for butchers or bakers or candlestick makers,—but the other, Anderson, is a tall, fine looking man of the military type. He and Wells occupy a room with nicely carpeted floor, containing two black walnut beds, tables, chairs, and writing conveniences, and although neither as light as the Senate Chamber nor as airy as the dome, is far from being an uncomfortable lodging. The restraint upon them all is very slight and they are allowed to ride out whenever they choose to do so.

Lent does not appear to do away with all festivities in Washington, though the "Gay Season" proper, came to a close a fortnight ago. Last week people were very pleasantly entertained by an "Author's Carnival" given at Masonic Temple on four successive evenings. The principal representations were Burn's Cottage, the inmates of which were all in Highland costume; Whittier's "Snow Bound" home and "Maud Muller;" Moore's "Lalla Rookh" with the veiled prophet and peri; Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women" and "May Queen;" Peggotty's boat from Dickens' "David Copperfield;" Shakespeare; Alladin's Cave and Fairy Grotto. But the most attractive of all was the most real. A sculptor's studio wherein sat Virginia Ream, modeling portrait busts in clay. Chief Justice Waite sat to her the first evening and her deft little hands molded his striking features into recognizable shape in two or three hours. She will doubtless finish the bust and have it put into marble.

On Wednesday last a very distinguished company attended a reception given by Professor and Mrs. Henry of the Smithsonian Institute. Their companies are always most agreeable, and among the guests on Wednesday were Mrs. and Miss Fish, Secretary and Mrs. Chandler, Lady Thornton, General Sherman, Professor Baird, General and Mrs. Huter and a young lady relative of theirs, Miss Rush of Philadelphia. She is the daughter of Dr. Richard Rush, who was sent to England to receive the rich legacy of Smithsonian with which the institution named for him was founded.

Clara Louise Kellogg sings in Opera here four evenings this week and our musical world is wild over the prospect of so rich a treat. On the first evening she appears in "Star of the North," second, "The Flying Dutchman," third, "Faust," and fourth, "Il Traviatore." M. M. W.

Miscellaneous News Items.

A woman is very much like a kettle, if you come to think of it. She sings away so pleasantly—then she stops—and, when you least expect it, she boils over.

Mr. Charles Worth, of Conemaugh, fell down stairs a few days since and hurt himself so badly that he died from the injuries.

A Hartford boy was thrown from a double-ripper recently, and his hip broken, but he didn't say anything about it for a week, and now he will be a cripple for life.

A nineteen year old girl was whipped by a schoolmaster at Allamakee, Iowa, and she thereupon sued him for breach of promise, alleging that they had for a year been matrimonially engaged.

A bag containing the body of an infant was fished out of the river at Pittsburgh, recently. The child had evidently been alive when born, and was undoubtedly drowned. Pieces of iron had been placed in the bag to sink it.

Rice powder, which is much used by ladies upon their faces, is said to often contain lead, which renders it very injurious. If a little iodide of potash is dropped upon the powder the presence of lead will be revealed by its turning yellow.

A man in the top story of a Chicago hotel attracted a crowd of pedestrians a hundred feet below by waving a pillow case and shouting. "Some of you fellows go to the office and tell them to send me up a cocktail." His bell was broken.

Policeman E. W. Freeman shot and mortally wounded Edward Rice at a house on Walker avenue, Charleston, Mass., recently. The officer was endeavoring to arrest a noted thief and garrotter named Donovan, when he was set upon by the occupants of the room, eight in number, and finally compelled to use his revolver.

Efforts were made on Wednesday at Newport to arrest Rev. Charles Thorpe, an Episcopal minister, of Berry, province of Quebec, who eloped last Saturday with a young lady of respectable family, leaving his wife and three children. As Thorpe could not be held, he left for Utica, N. Y., the girl going to Lowell and refusing to return home.

At Barrow, Lancashire, England, a porter saved and bought real estate. His wife, who drank secretly pawned his coat, in the pocket of which were the title deeds. The pawnbroker refused to restore them unless the advance was paid. The Court of Chancery has restrained him from parting with them pending the hearing of an action.

New evidence confirms the suspicions that Anderson, the freight conductor on the Pennsylvania Railroad, whose mutilated body was found on the track near Harrisburg, was thrown there by some of the gang of counterfeiters with whom he had been connected, as he had expressed a determination to expose the gang after his own arrest for passing their bogus money.

The London Musical World has the following: "A celebrated vocalist, whose demeanor and acting were as awkward and ungainly as his voice was beautiful, said one day to Charles Bannister: 'Do you know what made my voice so melodious?' 'No,' replied Bannister.—'Why, then, when I was fifteen I swallowed by accident some train oil.' 'I don't think,' rejoined Bannister, 'it would have done you any harm, if, at the same time, you had swallowed a dancing master.'"

A blast of thirteen holes was exploded a few days ago at the bottom of the Lochiel stone quarries, near Harrisburg, through the agency of dynamite, with astonishing results. The bulk of stone heaved up is estimated at 500 perches, some pieces being of astonishing dimensions. Three pieces were measured and found to be sixteen feet long, seven feet wide and four feet thick, or sufficient to build about 168 feet of ordinary stone fence.

The law of Missouri requires that when a man is to be arrested, the warrant shall be read to him. While Deputy Marshall Hughes of Jackson county was reading a warrant to Frank Miller and Richard Green, whom he found while they were chopping wood in the Little Blue bottom, Green shot him through the heart, killing him instantly. Both men fled, but were captured last week in Lafayette county.

An odd case of "prospecting a legacy" came under notice at the Bury County Court in England the other day. The defendant, in answer to a question put to him as to a sum of £500 left to him by his mother stated that it had "gone where it was owing." It then came out that he had paid it into the hands of an innkeeper under an agreement drawn out by a lawyer that the legacy, little or much, should, when it became tangible be given to the innkeeper, who was to keep the defendant until he died, and then bury him respectfully. It is not an unusual custom in some parts of England for persons who have an unexpected windfall in the shape of a small legacy to pay the amount thus received to a neighboring publican, and then "drink it out."

Not long after the stealing of Charles Ross, a little son of Henry Doehmueler of St. Louis, was stolen. The father had but little property, and was unable to pay the expenses of an extensive search; but he shrewdly hit upon a plan for accomplishing the object effectually.—He read the newspapers carefully, and whenever he saw an account of the finding of a supposed Charles Ross he sent to learn if the boy was not his lost one. At length, two years after the kidnapping, he saw an account of a stray boy in Illinois, and, on going there, he found what he had been so long in search of. The child's hair had been dyed, and he had changed much through sickness and deprivation, but there was no doubt as to the identity. He had been stolen by wandering beggars, who had made his pretty face profitable in exciting sympathy. The father is now prosecuting the supposed kidnappers.

Dyspepsia Dyspepsia Dyspepsia.

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn of every known malady. This is due, in part to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function necessarily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system, and effects to some extent, the quality of the blood.
