Wanted Equal Terms.

It is related of Dr. Guthrie that one day, while making parochial visits, he came to the door of an Irish papist, who was determined that the doctor should not enter his house. "You can't come in here," he said. "You're not needed nor wanted."

"My friend," said the doctor, "I am only visiting round my parish to become acquainted with my people, and have called on you—only as a parishioner."

"It don't matter," said Paddy; "yer shan't come in here." And with that, lifting the poker, he said, "If you come in here I'll knock you down."

Most men would have retired, or tried to reason. The doctor did neither; but drawing himself up to his full height, and looking the Irishman fair in the face, he said, "Come now; that's too bad. Would you strike a man unarmed? Hand me the toings, and then we shall be on equal terms."

The man looked at him for a while in great amazement, and then said, "Och, sure yer a quare man for a minister.—Come inside." And feeling rather ashamed of his conduct, he laid down the poker.

The doctor entered, and talked, as he could so well do, in a way both so entertaining and so instructive as to win the admiration of the man; so that, when he arose to go, Paddy shook his hand warmly, and said, "Be sure, Sir, don't pass my door without giving me a call."

Wanted a little Joke.

A chap who enjoyed a good joke expected he would have one. Getting on a street car, he sat down besides a big-fisted man and remarked:

"I don't suppose you object to riding beside a small-pox patient, do you?"

"Not in the least," replied the big man, "but as some of the other passengers may I shall have you out!"

Thereupon he took the joker by the collar and leg, carried him to the platform, and shot him far out into a big snow drift.

Minister ( portentously): "James, this is a very dreadful thing! You have heard there is a bank note missing from the box?"

James (the sexton, who is strongly suspected): "Deed, sir, so they were telling me."

Minister (solemnly): "James, you and I alone had access to that box."

James: "It's just as ye say, sir; it must lie between us twa. An' the best way 'll be, you to pay the one half, an' I'll pay the tither, an' say na' mair about it."

A woman asked a colored patriarch if the sight of a mince pie didn't make his mouth water. He replied: "Dar wuz a time when it did. In doze good old days ob long ago, when dey built mince pies out'n meat, apples, brandy an' spices, dar wuz a successive hankering to git up ebus to a mince pie. But in dese days, when dey erect sich pies out'n de fust grizzle an' de fust apples an' de fust picking dat come handy, nail on de top crust, and scollope de edges wid dar false teeth, why, I'ze gwine to stan' an' stan' roun', an' take de chances on findin' a cocoon in de gutter."

An organ was sometime ago introduced in a parish church in the north of Scotland, and some of the members took offence and left. One of these soon after met another member, and inquired "hoo the organ was gettin' on?" "O, fine," was the answer. "Jist blawin' awn' the chaff an' keepin' the corn."

A New York school master told a young miss that the word "obligatory" meant binding, whereupon she laid her head upon her hand and, after a brief cogitation, handed the teacher this sentence: "The obligatory of my spelling book is worn out." He fainted.

"Why is it that everybody in Texas thinks it necessary to carry one or two revolvers?" "Well, stranger," said the Texan, "you mought travel round here a good long time and not want a weapon, but when you do want a pistol in this country you want it bad."

There is a paragraph going the rounds about a baby being sent a long distance by express. But we should say that it is all right. The baby couldn't talk, and so, of course, could not express itself.

A Kentucky magistrate closed a dispute between two lawyers and the court in the following terms: "If the court is right—and she thinks she air—why, then, you are wrong, and she knows you is. Shut up!"
