J. S. WHITMORE. Perry Co., Pa Bloomfield January 25, 1870.

The present Archbishop of Dublin, the gifted author of the work so widely known, on the Study of Works, is not in very robust health, and has been for many years apprehensive of paralysis. At a recent dinner in Dublin given by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, his Grace sat on the right side of his hostess, the Duchess of Abercorn. In the midst of the dinner the company was startled by seeing the Archbishop rise from his seat, and still more startled to hear him exclaim, in a dismal and sepulchral tone, "It has come! it has come!"

"What has come, your grace " eagerly cried half a dozen voices from different parts of the table.

"What I have been expecting for twenty years," solemnly answered the Archbishop—"stroke of paralysis. I have been pinching myself for the last twenty minutes, and find myself entirely without sensation."

"Pardon me my dear Archbishop," said the duchess, looking at him with a somewhat quizzical smile-"pardon me for contradicting you, but it is I that you have been pinching.

as A laughable story is related of Dunning, an English judge. It is said of him that frequently, in the examination of witnesses, he often "displayed great coarseness, and drew upon himself the animadversion of his brethern. On one occasion, wishing to establish the identity of a party through the instrumentality of an unsophisticated old woman (occupying the witness stand), the following highly amusing colloquy is said to have taken place between Dunning and the old woman :

Dunning,—"Was he tall man?"
Witness.—"Not very tall, your honor -much about the size of your worship's honor."

Dun,- "Was he good looking ?" Wit .- " Quite contrary-much like your honor; but with a handsomer nose." Dun. - Did he squint?" Wit .- " A little, your worship; but have joined.

not so much as your honor by a great deal! These replies produced a roar of laughter in the court, in which Lord Mansfield (who was in the Bench) is said to Nothing in It. Curran was once addressing a jury, when the judge, who was thought to be antagonistic to his client, intimated his dissent from the arguments advanced by a shake of his head. "I see, gentlemen, said Curran, " I see the motion of his lordship's head. Persons unacquainted with his lordship would be apt to think this implied a difference of opinion; but be assured, gentlemen, this is not the case. When you know his lordship as well as I do, it will be unnecessary to tell you that when he shakes his head there really is nothing in it."

EF Dr. Johnson was observed by a musical friend of his to be extremely inattentive at a concert whilst a celebrated solo player was running up the divisions and sub-divisions of notes upon his violin. His friend, to induce him to take greater notice of what was going on, told him the performance was very difficult, "Difficult, sir," replied the Doctor," " I wish it were impossible."

66 An English barrister named Miss ing was defending a prisoner charged with stealing a donkey. The owner had left the donkey tied up to a gate, and when he returned it was gone. Missing was very severe in his examination of the witness. "Do you mean to say, witness, that the donkey was stolen from the gate?" "I mean to say, sir, giving the judge and jury a sly look, the ass was Missing."

Es At a party the other evening. there was a lull in the conversation. which made the host, who was inexperienced in such matters, somewhat nervous. With a view to relief, he asked a mournful looking man, who was in one corner, if he was married. "No; I am a bachelor," replied the sombre man. "Ah!" observed the host, warming up with the subject, "how long have you been a bachelor?"

A preacher said, "Every tub must stand on its own bottom." A sailor jumped up and said, "But, sir, suppose it has no bottom?" "Then it's no tub." retorted he, quickly, and went on with the sermon.

A young lady recently said to her lover: "You may be too late for the cars but you can take a "bus;" and the stupid fellow went to look for a "buss."

A Slight Mistake.
