
HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

Adviee to Western Emigrants.

The Ellsworth (Kan.) Reporter gives the following ndvice to those wanting the following ndvice to those wanting information:
We are recel
We are receiving many letters from parties in the East who want a copy of parties in the East who want a copy of the Reporter to flud out about this country. If all come who write that they intend to, there will be very little good firming land left in Ellsworth county one year from now. Most of these people want farms, some are carthese people want tarms, some are carpenters and want work. There is land plenty for the farmers, but we can give ilttle encouragement to carpenters. One of our best carpenters sald to us the other day that nine-tenths of the men other day that ninetenths of the men who come here are carpenters. There who come here are earpenters. There ready for seeling and a house to live in. Many families come west without any money on hand, but caeh enough ought to be brought along to furnish supplies for the first year. Much can be raised it takes about a year to raise a crop and turn it into cash.
Our correspondent wants to know all about this country. It is a good country to live in. Soclety is good. There are live people all through the West.
The young man who comes here expecting to be elected Representative the first year of his residence, will find smarter men than he is in his way. Kansas people believe in schools and new comers will find school houses plenty, and good teachers generally. As for ty, and good teachers generally. the climate there is no other Sta is so highly favored. The same is true in regard to roads, there is but little mud here and no stagnant ponds.
There is still a great deal of land subject to entry, and the K. P. R. W. Co sell on 11 years time at from $$ 4$ to 88 an acre. Wheat is the principal crop raised and is largely cultivated, hundred acre fields being plenty. Corn is also cultivated largely; rye was never known to fail ; oats, barley, and other small grains do well. Raising broom corn is grains do well. Raising broom corn is profitable business, and many farmers have large fields of it. Fruits can be suceessfully cultivated - peaches especially doing well, the trees coming into bearing when three or four years into bearing when three or four years old.
This
This country is considered as pre-eminently adapted to stock raising. eminently adapted to stock raising.
Cattle and sheep subeist a large part of the year on the natural grasses. Stock raising is a profitable business and is largely engaged in.
In short, this is a most beautiful country to look at-a delightful country to live in - where one can have health, and, if he is wisely industrious, wealth Experiments, with Crab Apple Trees.
Mr. S. S. Wing, of this city, has been experimenting upon the crab apple trees in his garden, and the results are suffciently interesting to warrant recital. When the trees were in blossom Mr.
Wing girdled one of the most vigorous Wing girdled one of the most vigorous limbs on each tree, cutting outa strip of bark one-fourth of an inch wide completely around the limb. Instead of kiling the limb, as one would suppose, it added strengih and vigor to its growth, and theee girdled limbs are now loaded with handsome fruit, the apples all being about the same size, and the smallest of them larger than the largest ones on any other portion of the tree. Mr.
Wing's theory is that the eirculation of Wing's theory is that the circulation of sap is apward through the wood and and back by the bark, or between the bark and wood. By removing a narrow strip of bark the flow of sap into the extremity of the limb is not retarded, but its return to the trunk is substantially cut off for a time. This theory is sapported by the from the upper that new bark and, growing downward, gradually re covers the limb, so that at the end of the season the wound is entirely covered over with the new bark. Mr. Wing has experimented on his trees in this manner ol five years past, he informs as, and To cut out too wlde a strip of barl would doubtless beinjurious and perhaps fatal, but Mr. Wing is inclined to think that the tree might be narrowly girdled with benefcial results. He proposes to try the experime
