An Inquisitive Woman.

One of our dry goods clerks called round to see his girl the other evening.
She observed that he appeared very restless, and as he had been paying her pretty sharp attention she sniffed a proposal. She determined to assist the young man.
"Dave, dear," she said, in a sweet voice, "what's the matter with you this evening?"
"There ain't nothing the matter," replied Dave, twisting uneasily in his chair.
"I think there is," she said, with great interest.
"Oh, no, there ain't," returned Dave,
"what makes you think so?"
"You appear so restless," she explained; "you act as if there was something on your mind."
"It ain't on my mind," observed Dave; "it's"—and then he suddenly caught himself, and stopped.
"What is it—where is it, dear? entreated the young miss; "won't you tell your darling?"
"It's on my back," blurted Dave,
with an effort.
"On your back?" repeated the young miss, in astonishment.
"Yes," said Dave desperately; "it's a porous plaster, and it itches so I can't keep still!"
The young lady faints.

During the last election for the representation of East Aberdeenshire, Scotland, one of the ministers in a rural parish, canvassing one day among his parishioners, came across one of them who was a staunch liberal, and at once commenced sounding him on the subject. "I suppose they'll all be sound up this way, John?" "I daur say they are," "Of course, John, you'll be going to vote for our side?" "That's my business," The minister, rather taken aback by this sharp answer, said, "Oh, I am asking no questions." "I'm answering none," was the dry answer.

A merchant in a provincial town in Scotland had a habit of saying, "It might ha' been worse," to everything that was told him, however sad the story might be. A neighbor thinking he would knock the wind out of him, one morning said: "Man, I had an awful dream last night." "Ay, what did ye dream?" "I dreamed I was in 'hell.'"
"Well, it might ha' been worse."
"How could it have been any worse, I'd like to know!" "Why, if it had been a reality?"

Dr. Louls, of New Orleans, who is something of a wag, called on a colored Baptist minister, and propounded this puzzling question. "Why is it," said he, "that you are not able to do the miracles that the Apostles did? They were protected against all poisons and all kinds of perils. How is it you are not protected now in the same way?
The colored preacher responded promptly, "Don't know about dat, doctor; I s'pect I is. I've taken a mighty sight of strong medicine from you, doctor, and I is alive yet."

"What do you know about the prisoner?" asked the Judge.
"I don't know nothin' 'bout him, Judge, only he's bigoted."
"Bigoted?" said his Honor.
"Yes, sah."
"What do you mean by 'bigoted'?"
"Well, Jedge," explained the witness,
"he knows too much foh one man, an'
not 'nuff foh two."

An Irishman, fresh from the "old country," saw a turtle for the first time, and at once made up his mind to capture it. The turtle caught him by the finger, and he, holding it out at arm's length, said, "Faith, and ye had better let loose the howlt ye have, or I'll kicke ye out of the very box ye sit in, be jabers."

"Why, Johnny, have you been out in all this storm? Come here! I presume your feet are as wet as—"
"No, mammas, I didn't get my feet wet. I took off my shoes and went barefooted!"

At a public contest lately held, the following was the prize conundrum:
What is the difference between a tenant and the son of a widow? The tenant has to pay rents; but the son of a widow has not two parents.

"Is that your offspring, madam?" asked a Missouri judge of a woman who had hold of a snubnosed boy's hand.
"No, sir," she replied, "this is my oldest boy."

An Irishman from the far West writes that pork is so plenty out there that every third man you meet is a hog!
