Lost Himself .- On Thursday morning iast, Constable Eckert hied himself to the residence of County Commissioner Gantt, situate on the banks of the rollicking Little Buffalo Creek, for the purpose of having a business chat, and to look at the Commissioners big hogs. Having accomplished his mission the Constable took a near cut across the hills for home, and after traveling for a considerable length of time made an observation as to the latitude he was in, and found that he was near Markelville, and still traveling. A colloquy then ensued as to whether he was himself or somebody else, which being satisfactorily determined he set out once more, and arrived to near the starting point. After further trials and tribulations he succeeded in reaching his home in time to tle in the stock.

Sudden Death .- Mr. John Shank, an aged and respected citizen of Antrim twp., Franklin county, died suddenly on Saturday last at his residence near Greencastle, Mr. Shank had been unwell for some time, but on the day of his death was still able to go about, and had gone to the barn to attend to some duties where he was shortly after found dead. Mr. Shank was the founder of the large Dunkard church, which he had erected with his own means on his own property.-Repository.

Mysterious Disappearance.- Mr. John Nisley, clerk to the county treasury at Harrisburg, mysteriously disappeared on Wednesday evening. He started to the train to meet his wife who was expected home, but failed to meet her, and has not been seen since. He was a young man of good habits, and as far as is known his money matters are all correct. It is feared he has met with foul play.

A Millerstown Romance.- We think there are few cases on record that are so remarkable as one that occurred in Millerstown last week. A willing bride kept from her expectant husband, and he a young man in good circumstances, and of good character, is an unusual incident in this community. In this case it seems the couple have been separated several times, but the young man knew he was right, and was bound to win, while the young lady was determined to be Wright no longer, and has succeeded. The following letter from our correspondent will give our readers the full particulars.

MILLERSTOWN, Perry Co., Pa., November 22nd, 1877.

The curtain fell last night upon the The curtain fell last flight upon the last act of one of the most startling Melo-dramas ever enacted either on or off the stage. I will endeavor to give the readers of THE TIMES a true and impartial history of this more than extraordinary case, and let them judge for themselves.

Miss Emiline W. Wright, residing here with her parents, made the acquaintance of a young man named W. H. Boos, then living in the neighboring county of Juniata. This acquaintance resulted as many have done before, and will in probability again, they fell in love with each other, and this followed to its legitimate sequence found them to its legitimate sequence found them solemnly engaged to be married. This was eleven years ago. Shortly after the happy climax, the young man, with joy in his heart, and the strong pure love joy in his heart, and the strong pure love of this tender hearted girl to nerve his arm, followed the Star of Empire as he hoped to woo fortune in the far West.— He prospered apace and kept up a con-He prospered apace and kept up a constant and loving correspondence with his Pennsylvania sweetheart. At last the time came when he concluded, with her consent, that he would come from her consent, that he would come fr his prairie lands and claim his bride.

me 1 far off Omaha to this peaceful hamlet to claim the hand of his willing inamorata, claim the hand of his willing inamorata, and twice through the machinations and sinuosities of her family was he compelled to go back to his lonely hearth, wifeless. Again they determined to make the attempt, and for weeks the young lady has been making her preparations for the all important event. But again fate and her family interposed, and when the gentleman arrived on Monday last (the wedding was to take place on Tuesday evening), tired and travelstained, he found that the bride had mysteriously disappeared. By this time the indignation of the people here knew no bounds. The position her family had taken was the subject of severe and unreserved criticism.

The lady is about thirty years of age

The lady is about thirty years of age The lady is about thirty years of age and the possessor of some property, and the citizens here very properly thought she should be protected in her desire to settle for life. Diligent search was made for her, but with no success. The hour for the ceremony arrived, and the church was crowded. The minister and groom were in prompt attendance, but no bride. In the meantime there was some shrewd guessing done as to her whereabouts. which resulted in two gentlemen taking a late train Tuesday night for Philadel-phia, and yesterday about eleven o'clock the whole community was electrified by a telegram from them that they had the young lady and were upon their way home. Now the pluck of the good citizens was put to test and nobly did it respond. Every one knew that the family would make a determined effort to capture the young lady at the train. The capture the young hay at the train. The foremost actor in the affair was her brother, who is quite a prominent man here, and has previously to this unhappy matter bore a good share of the people's confidence. He is Superintendent of the County Schools of this county and a Professor in her Normal Schools.

a Professor in her Normal Schools.

When the train arrived the crowd was large and earnest and they were resolved to have fair play. The young lady and her friends got off the train and the triumphal procession moved away. The dark and forbidding structure that spans the Juniata was safely passed and the bridge over the historic Pennsylvania canal reached when the clash came. The young lady's brothers were here in force and made a rosh to capture her, but the and made a rush to capture her, but the impetuous crowd swept them to one side as if they didn't amount to much, and they didn't. The young lady was overcome with fear and excitement, and was taken to a neighboring house where restoratives were applied, and she was soon herself again. And now the crowd vented their delight at the success of their coup de main in hearty cheers. In a little while a handsome carriage, surrounded by an improvised guard of honor, took her to the house of a friend, where she made her toilet, and in a little while she was standing, side by side with the man of her choice. side by side with the man of her choice, at the chancel of the Methodist church at the chancel of the Methodist church where Mr. Buckley, its pastor, assisted by Mr. Logan, of the Presbyterian con-gregation, performed the ceremony which ended their troubles for the pres-ent. There is a very strong feeling here against the elder brother of the bride, he having written insolent letters to Mr. Buckley, the pastor, and the trustees of the Methodist church, and having been generally conspicuous in the affair. Thus ends the romanceand a stranger one I venture to say rarely comes to the surface of society. NESTOR.

Horse Thief Captured .- Friday morning a man came to York, offered a horse for sale at Kindig's sale stables. Suspicion was aroused and they refused to buy.

The man then left, and he was followed by constables Berry and Hummer to Dover. The man there again offered the animal to Mr. Haas, the hotel keep er, and Mr. H. gave him a check for $74, but did not sign it, as he thought all was not right, but the man was too dumb to notice this. The officers then arrested and brought him back to York, and took him to 'Squire Myers' office. A short time after a telegram was received here from Mt. Joy, Lancaster county, stating that a black roan horse and other description answering to that of the horse this party had offered for sale. On information of Officer Berry the man was committed to jail to await action of the grand jury, at the next term of court.

He gave his name as Henry Miller to the 'Squire, but at Dover had said his name was Henry Shaeffer, to which name the check was made out.

The parties from whom the horse was stolen offer a reward of $25 for the horse and $40 for the recovery of the horse and thief. The horse was left at Dover until further information shall be received.

Miller or Shaeffer states that he lives at Middletown, where he has a wife and children, and that he bought the horse from his brother about one year ago. He was partly under the influence of liquor when before the Squire .- York True Democrat.

A Dangerous Fellow.— Between seven and eight o'clock on Sunday evening a difficulty occurred between the captain of the boat "Hiawatha," Mr. Rhodes of Liverpool, and bowsman - whose name is given as Snyder-about a matter of wages. The "bowsman," who is reported to have been under the influence of liquor, followed Captain Rhodes across the canal to the stable were the team belonging to the boat was sheltered, and there began to "bull-doze" Mr. Rhodes, who told him in plain words that he would not have any words with him on Sunday. This so enraged the brute that he deliberately drew a revolver and threatened to use it then and there. Persons who were present then interfered, when the bully walked off. Capt. Rhodes made information against the bully the next morning, but when the latter was wanted he could not be found. He even forgot to come back to settle. Mr. Rhodes' boat was freighted with lumber, and he left here one hand short, but appeared to be glad to get rid of the violator of law and decency .- Harrisburg Patriot.

Cumberland County .- We copy the following from the Cumberland county papers of last week:

papers of last week:

A dastardly attempt was made on Saturday night to burn the handsome residence of S. A. Pague, Esq., corner of Pomfret and East streets. The glass beside the door had been broken and a considerable quantity of coal oil poured into the hall-way, after which lighted matches were thrown in, but failed to set fire to the house, as was doubtless the intention. The family knew nothing of the matter until Sunday morning they discovered the evidences of an attempted incendiary fire. The hall, inside the incendiary fire. The hall, inside the door, for about six feet, is covered with oil cloth, and this, doubtless, prevented a conflagration.

Mr. Pague is a tanner by occupation, and about two years ago his large tannery, adjoining the house, was totally destroyed. This attempt is apparently but an out-growth of the feeling against Mr. Pague which prompted the first fire; but why this hatred should be cherished is a mystery, as Mr. Pague is a man of integrity and is held in esteem by his fellow citizens, having been elected to several borough offices and came within one vote of receiving the Democratic nomination for Prothonotary in the summer of 1875. Carlisle has been cursed with "barn burners;" may it be that we will be spared the curse of having house burners in our midst.—Carlisle Mirror. a conflagration.

Tuesday morning, shortly after four o'clock, we were aroused from our slumbers by the cry of fire. The cause of the alarm was soon found to be the burning of the stable of Mr. Peter Weitzel, carpet-weaver, on West Keller street. The Washington fire company responded promptly to the call and hastened to the scene of the fire; but owing to the long distance they had to carry water through the hose, and the imperfect working of the fire-plug, they could not work very effectively; and the entire building was we were aroused from our slumburned to the ground. Mr. Weitzel's loss is about $200, on which he has an insurance of $100. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

A small stable adjoining that of Mr. W., on the east, and belonging to Mr. John Hots, was also burned down; while a large stable next on the west was not at all injured.—Mechanicsbury Ledger.

The County Commissioners, says the Volunteer, have concluded to devise ways and means by which the numerous tramps who are daily taking up quarters in the county jall, may be put to work. A large shed is to be erected in the jall yard, wherein the tramping fraternity will break stone. The stone will, in turn, be sold to the borough authorities.

On Friday morning, Mrs. Effle Tyler, a very respectable colored lady, was discovered dead in her bed. On Tuesday the deceased had given birth to a child and was progressing as well as could be expected. At about three o'clock, when those is attendance went to give her her medicine, they discovered that, unknown to them, she had died. An inquest was held, and the jury after hearing the evidence of Drs. Sibbet and Zigler, rendered the verdict, "from natural causes."

Juniata County.-We copy the following from the Juniata county papers of

On Friday last, while Henry K. Leiter was driving from Port Royal to Mexico, his horse took fright while opposite William Hetrick's barn, and in the conwilliam Hetrick's barn, and in the confusion the horse and wagon went over an embankment of thirty feet. The wagon was entirely broken up, but the horse received only a few scratches. Mr. Leiter, in jumping out of the wagon, had his hand hurt considerably. The wagon was a new one and cost Mr. L. $75.

About 1 o'clock Wednesday morning our citizens were aroused from their beds by the cry of fire and the ringing of the bell on the Lutheran church. The fire was discovered to be in what is known as the "strong room," in the northeast sorner of the county jail, between the plastering and the attic. It is thought that the fire originated from a defect in the flue. The fire was extinguished without doing any serious damage, except to the one room in which it age, except to the one room in which it originated.—Democrat & Register.

A Sense of Weariness

is often felt by persons who cannot locate any is often felt by persons who cannot locate any particular disease. If they work it becomes labor; if they walk they soon tire; mental efforts becomes a burden, and even joys are dimmed by the shadow of this weakness which is cast over their lives. Recourse is had sometimes to stimulants of a dangerous character. The advise of physicians to refrain from active labor produces no happy results. Why? The system is debilitated and needs to be built up proparty. Peruylan Syrup will do this very system is debilitated and needs to be built up properly. Peruvian Syrup will do this very thing. Like the electric current, it permeates the entire system, and harmonizing with the corporeal functions, it raises up the enfeebled, and brings the color to the cheek again, and hope to the despondent.
