PRINTING of every description neatly executed at the Bloomfield Times Office at reasonable rates.

The Boston Courier prints the following "boy's composition": "Hens is curious animals. They don't have no nose, nor no teeth, nor no ears. They swallow their wittles whole and chew it up in their crops inside of 'em. The outside of hens is generally put inter pillars and inter feather dusters. The inside of a hen is sometimes filled with marbles and shirt-buttons and sich. A hen is very much smaller than a good many other animals, but they'll dig up more tomato plants than anything that ain't a hen. Hens is very useful to lay eggs for plum puddings. Skinny Bates eat so much plum-pudding once that it sent him into the colliery. Hens has got wings and can fly when they get scart. I cut Uncle William's hens head off with a hatchet, and it scart her to death. Hens sometimes make very fine spring chickens."

"Have you got any clock to sell—someh'n' noise, for a present to me sither?" "We have all kinds of clocks," replied the jeweler; "twenty-four-hour clocks," and eight-day clocks, from $1.50 up to $200 in price. Here is one that will just suit you—a fine French clock, worth $15. "Go 'way wid yer French clock! Give us way that me sither kin understand whin it strikes!"

Winchell tells a story of a stranger seeing an Irishman leaning against a post, watching a funeral procession coming out of a brick house at his side, when the following dialogue ensued: "Is that a funeral?" "Yes, Sir I'm thinking that it is." "Any body of distinction?" "I reckon it is, Sir." "Who is it that died?" "The gentleman in the coffin, Sir."

Al. Dudley was a prominent lawyer in Toulumne. He was employed to defend a client for stealing a hog—jury trial. Dudley made an eloquent and successful plea. The man was acquitted. He was grateful, but had no money. "How can I ever repay you, Mr. Dudley; I haven't a cent. Accept my thanks." "Thanks be hanged!" said Al. "Send me a side of the pork."

"Ten dimes make one dollar," said the school master. "Now go on, sir. Ten dollars make one—what?" "They make one mighty glad these times," replied the boy, and the teacher, who hadn't got his last month's salary yet, concluded the boy was about right.

"Children," said the teacher, addressing the infant class, "Children do you know you were all born in sin?" "Please sir," interrupted a little one, "I wasn't: I was born in Cumberland." "Well, that's the same thing," said the teacher impatiently, "Don't interrupt me any more."

A cunning juryman addressed the clerk of the court when administering the oath, saying, "Speak up; I can not hear what you say." "Stop; are you deaf?" asked the judge. "Yes, of one ear." "Then you may leave the box, for it is necessary that Jurymen should hear both sides."

"I say," said a dandy to an intelligent mechanic, "I say, I've got an idea into my head."

"Well," replied the other, "if you don't cherish it with great care, it will die for want of companions."

Poetic Silver Argument. On one side of the trade dollar is a young lady in a nightgown sitting on a bale of cotton and holding an olive branch in her extended hand. Who can resist this silent appeal for help? Why wear ea the trade dollar?

When a Kentucky judge some years since, was asked by an attorney, upon some strange ruling, "Is that law, your honor?" He replied—"if the court understands herself, and she think she do, it are!"

A fellow was told, at a tailor's shop, that three yards of cloth, by being wet, would shrink one quarter of a yard—"Well, then," he inquired, "if you should wet a quarter of a yard, would there be any left?"

"I ment to have told you of that hole," said a man to his friend, who stumbled into a pit of water.

"No matter now," said he, brushing the mud and water from his mouth, "I have found it."

"Let the toast be, dear woman," as the man said when he kicked his wife into the fire.

Why do old maids wear mittens? To keep off the chaps.
