Mrs. Gaines' Alligator Story.

Mrs. Gaines, surrounded by an interested group of listeners in the parlor of the hotel, was laughing and carrying on as merrily as a girl of sixteen, telling strange anecdotes of her most strange and romantic career. "Is that so?" said a person in the circle repeatedly. "I never heard any one say 'is that so?' without thinking of an alligator story," said the little woman. "Have any of you ever heard it?" Well—a credulous stranger was going down the Red river in the small packet that navigates the stream. The man ensconced himself in the pilot-house and kept up a continual volley of interrogatives. "Are there many alligators in this stream stranger?" "Hundreds of them; indeed, I may say millions of them!" "Is—that—so—stranger?" "Never told a lie in my life, sir. One time we were running a race, and everything was excitement. To our surprise the other boat passed. 'Throw over the lines said the Captain.' The lines were thrown overboard and the alligators took the lines and they just made tracks, and they shot ahead of the other boat and ran our boat down the stream so fast that in five minutes we were out of sight." "Is—that—so—stranger?" "Never told a lie in my life. Another time, the boat struck on a bar. We worked and worked, but she didn't move a peg. The lines were tossed into the water, and the alligators seized them, and drew us off as the skin on a boiled potato." "Is—that—so—stranger?" "Never told a lie in my life. One time all the alligators got sick and were about to die. 'Throw over the medicine,' said the Captain. The medicine chest was emptied into the river, and the alligators all got well." "Is—that—so—stranger?" "Never told a lie in my life. After a while the Captain got sick and died, and the alligators held a meeting, and adopted resolutions to wear mourning for thirty days. Each alligator clapped a chunk of mud over his right eye, and the meeting adjourned." "Is—that—so—stranger?" "Never told a lie in my life. Read about George Washington and the hatchet early in my infantile career." The story told in Mrs. Gaines' rapid and dramatic manner brought down the house.

Better sense than grammar was the old Dutchman's saying: "A good character ish bretty much der same to a man ash a good umbrella. Ven drag glands dhreaten over his head, all he ish got to do vas to hold him ub, und der storm basses over, und he ish none der vorse."

A telegraphic operator, not far from Boston, received a telegram for an Irishman, from a girl whom he had previously been trotting around, inviting him to come and spend a holiday with her. The operator sent the message, and received the following answer: "I am married, and to me grief."

A youthful Jacksonian said to his mother the the other day, "Yuba Dam ain't swearing, is it?" "Oh, no; that is the name of a town in California." "Well, ma, when you go out the back door Yuba Dam careful or you'll take a tumble to yourself on that ice."

Two Irishmen were proceeding in company to a jail yard to witness an execution, when one said to the other: "I say, Pat, where wud ye be if the hangman had his dues?" "Sure," said Pat, "I'd jist be walkin' down this shreet all alone."

A loving husband at Louisville telegraphed to his wife in New York as follows: "What have you got for breakfast, and how is the baby?" The answer came back. "Buckwheat cakes and measles."

Wilkins has quit the study of botany now. He was frightened nearly to death by a bullrush. The bull rushed right at him; and the fence was about seventy-five yards off.

"I know nothing in the catalogue of men's duties that I would be unable to perform!" said Stone. "How would you figure as the father of a family?" asked a man in the gallery.

The noted George Palmer worth only a short time ago over $40,000, died in a stable last week. He was a race horse.
