An Exciting Chase.

The South Bend Tribune says : The readers of the Tribune will remember our often mentioning, during the past three years, the terrible depredatious made on ttocks of sheep on Harris Prairie by a gray wolf. The wolf was often seen, but was so sly that hunters seldom got a shot at her. Twice her litters were captured, but she escaped, and her inroads on the flocks in that vicinity have aggregated a loss to the farmers of over $1,000, as Mr. Michael Smith estimates.

On Wednesday of last week some of the old hunters assembled for the purpose of giving her chase, and it was agreed to keep up the hunt until she was captured. The hunt continued all Wednesday and far into the night. The dogs routed her out of her lair, but she was so fleet-footed that she soon distanced them, and, though seen several times, no one got a shot at her. On Thursday morning the chase was resumed. Sometimes the wolf would be found near Edwardsburg, and then again down on the prairie, running, though most always in a circle.

On Friday Mr. Michael Smith got sight of her running across one of his fields, and was within a few rods of the game, but unluckily had left his gun a short distance off and was armed with only an axe. Saturday morning John Shrimp and his companions started her from the top of a haystack on the Catholic farm. The chase was kept up all that day and also on Sunday and Monday. Monday afternoon she was tracked to Mr. Smith's woods, which were surrounded by the entire hunting force.

Fon Quimby's hounds started her up and pertinaciously pursued her until she finally attempted to break from the woods near where Quimby was stationed. He discharged both barrels of his gun at her. One slug went directly through her body, from which the blood spurted in a great stream, and, running a few rods, she dropped dead in her tracks.

The wolf measured about three and a half feet in height, and was over six feet long. Her favorite method of killing sheep was to run with the flock, grasp a sheep by the neck with her jaws, suck the blood, and then pounce upon another and on another, until her appetite was satiated. She has been known to kill six or eight sheep in one night, and had become such a terror in the neighborhood that some of the farmers sold their flocks. The farmers were so rejoiced over the capture and death of the wolf that they made up a purse of $40 for the boys, and naturally look for the County Commissioners to do something in the matter,

An Unjust Verdict,

If one of the many " put up" medicines prove ineffectual, all are condemned as nostrums. Is this right? Are all American citizens denounced as traitors because Benedict Arnold committed treason? Some refuse to use Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. simply because they have used others without benefit. Dr. Pierce's preparations possess actual merit, and, if taken when indicated, the most sanguine expectations will be realized. His Golden Medical Discovery is the standard alterative and bloodpurifier in the market. Thousands of testimonials from those it has cured of consumption, dyspepsia, liver complaint, and various forms of skin disease, are on file in the D octor's office, certifying to its efficacy. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is relied upon by women to cure the many weaknesses and irregularities peculiar to their sex. For further information see the People's Common Sense Medical Advertiser, an illustrated work of nearly 1000 pages. Over one hundred thousand copies sold. Price $1.50, post-paid. The Pictorial History of the World, embrac-ing full and subbuilt accounts of overy nation of ancient and modern times, and including a History of the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the growth of the nations of Modern Europe, the Mid-die ages, the Crusades, the Feudal System, the Reformation, the discovery and settle-ment of the New World, etc., etc., by James D. McCabe.

A Great Historical Work.

There has long been a great and universally-felt want of a History of the World suitable for general use. The want is now being supplied by The National Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill., St. Louis, Mo., and Dayton, Ohio, who have issued a handsome volume, entitled "The Pictorial History of the World," by James D. McCabe, a well-known historical writer. This work will, undoubtedly, take rank as a Standard History. It is the most valuable book that has been published in this country for many years. It contains a separate and admirably written history of every nation of ancient and modern times, and is full of valuable information concerning them, presented in popular style, and in a manner that will enable the reader to refer instantly to any subject upon which information is desired. The book is a complete treasury of history, and there is not a question that can be asked concerning any historial subject, but an answer can be found in this work. The author does not content himself with a mere dry statement of facts, but sketches the life and manners of the various nations of which he treats, in life-like colors, and presents to the reader the causes which led to the prosperity and decay of the great powers of the world. He shows us the various great men-the warriors, statesmen, poets, sages, and orators-of ancient and modern times, and makes them familiar with the reader ; he explains the secret motives of their actions, and points out the lessons which their lives teach. A valnable feature of the book is a full History of the late War between Russia and Turkey.

This is the only complete History of the World in print, and it should be read by every intelligent person. We are constantly called upon to discuss the great questions of history, and the wars and quarrels of the old world require us to be continually refreshing our historical knowledge. It is compact, easy of reference, and strictly accurate, and presents to the reader a mass of information respecting ancient, mediaval and modern history not to be found in any other book.

The mechanical execution of the book deserves the highest praise. It contains 1260 large double-column pages, printed in the clearest and most beautiful style on paper of the very best quality. The book is embellished with over 650 fine engravings, embracing battles and other historical scenes ; portraits of the great men of ancient and modern times ; and views of the principal cities of the world. These engravings are genuine works of art, and were made at a cost of over $25,000. We cannot too highly praise the numerous and beautiful portraits of historical personages with which it abounds.

Agents will find that this book will sell readily when all others fail, from the fact that it is a work that the people really want. The price is so low that every one can afford to purchase a copy. It is sold

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 12 .- The coroner's jury on the body of the dead infant found by detectives in the undertaking rooms of John Huth rendered a verdict of murder by some person or persons unknown to the jury. The evidence tended to show that the child was several months old. John Huth is under arrest on the charge of being an accessory to the crime. . He will have a hearing to-morrow.

From a Physician.

GREAT BEND, Pa., Nov. 22, 1875. Mossrs, Seth W. Fowle & Sons, Boston. Gentlemen- For nearly two years my wife was troubled with a lung difficulty. After enduring the trial of much medicine, she was persuaded to use Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. After using two bottles she experienced great relief, and after she had taken six bottles she was freed of her cough. I with pleasure commend Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. J. T. PAYNE, M. D. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

A Good Account.

"To sum it up, six long years of bedridden sickness and suffering, costing $200 per year, total, $1,200-all of which was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters, taken by my wife, who has done her own housework for a year since without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it for their benefit."
