Don't fail to say what paper you saw this in.

Humorous Errors.

A correspondent of the New England Journal has collected the following specimens of false syntax:

An Iowa editor thus acknowledges a present of grapes: "We have received a basket of grapes from our friend W., for which he will accept our compliments, some of which are nearly two inches in diameter."

A widow at the West intending to succeed her husband in the management of a hotel, advertises that "the hotel will be kept by the widow of the former landlord, Mr. Brown, who died last summer on a new and improved plan."

One of Sir Boyle Roche's invitations to an Irish nobleman was rather equivocal. He writes: "I hope, my lord, if you ever come within a mile of my house you will stay there all night."

A clergyman says: "A young woman died in my neighborhood yesterday, while I was preaching in a beastly state of intoxication."

A correspondent, in writing of a recent celebration in the city of Cleveland, says: "The procession was very fine, and nearly two miles long, as was also the report of Dr. Perry, the chaplain."

A Western paper says: "A child was run over by a wagon three years old, and cross-eyed, with pants on, which never spoke afterwards."

Over a bridge at Athens, Ga., was the following: "Any person driving over this bridge in a faster pace than a walk shall, if a white person, be fined five dollars, and if a negro, receive twenty-five lashes, half the penalty to be bestowed on the informer."

An awkward young Englishman, ambitious to cultivate the graces that ladies admire, went to Paris and took lessons in dancing from the celebrated Monsieur Grosjean. Elated with his supposed proficiency, when his lessons were ended, he was lavish in offers of any service he could render his accomplished teacher, which for a long time Mons. G. politely declined. Finally yielding to the Englishman's importunity to allow him to do something for the best of teachers, the polite Frenchman said, with a shrug, Ah, zen! Monsieur will be so kind as not mention zat I taught him ze dance!

There is a man in Cambridge who don't like the new silver dollar. He was describing it to a friend yesterday: "On one side of it," said he, "is a picture of a healthy lookin' gal, but her nose looks like a coal-hod upside down, and her chin is shoved way out from her face like the hind step of an omnibus. On the other side is a sick lookin' bat with a scar' expression on his face tryin' to fly away with a bundle of eel spears."

"Can you tell me where Washington's Monument is?" asked a rural gentleman in Charles Street, Baltimore, the other day. "Just lift your eyes off the ground," said the person addressed, rather tartly, "and you'll see it."

"Well, I hev lifted my eyes," said the rural party, looking his informant calmly in the face, "an' I don't see nuthin' but a darned old fool."

A pious resident on Railroad street, who has been much interested in the cremation system, said to his wife: "My dear, I wish you to remember that when the Lord calls me to my reward, I desire to be cremated if a suitable furnace is accessible." "Yes, love," replied his spouse, "but when the Lord calls you I think he will provide for your burning."

A Lowell man, who lost his good character sometime ago, was severely hauled over by some of his former friends. "I know it, boys. I know my character's gone; lost entirely. And," he added, rather pointedly, "it's too confounded bad, for it was the only one in the place worth saving."

"Mamma, where do people go when they die?" "My dear, I can't tell you just where." "But don't you know?" "How can I know, Nellie? Mamma has never died."

"Of course not, but haven't you studied geography?"

"I was not aware that you knew him," said Tom Smith to an Irish friend the other day. "Know him!" said he, in a tone which comprehended the knowledge of more than one life—"I knew him when his father was a boy."

"What's honor?" asks Falstaff. That's easy. Any woman who sits behind another woman in church can tell what's on her in two minutes.
