

Sale of the Ashtabula Horror Relics.

The unclaimed relics of the Ashtabula bridge horror have been sold at auction, realizing $42.08. As the authorities could only afford to advertise the sale in the local papers very few persons were present. The first article sold was a small English dictionary bearing the name of "S. Leonard" on the fly-leaf. It brought 10 cents. Then followed a basket of broken chinaware, valuable only as relics to the buyer; price 15 cents. A solid silver napkin ring brought 95 cents; red embroidered tobacco pouch, 15 cents; silk handkerchief, 34 cents, pair of shoes worn by a girl with a deformed foot, $1; pair of skates, 10 cents. No excitement or agitation was visible until a young lady, daughter of Mr. A. H. Stockwell, formerly a hotel keeper of Ashtabula, who has been missing since the disaster, detected from a link of a silver chain attached to a watch, blackened and burned, that the time-piece and chain had been the property of her father. She burst into tears, and while sympathizing women gathered around her, a man who had just bought the watch for a few cents delivered it to her. The works of gold watches, which when intact were worth $150 to $300 each, were valued at $1 apiece and sold for considerably less. In fact, they were worthless except for curiosities of the great railway calamity. There were garments or shreds that had been once worn by rich and poor, now practically valueless on account of the action of fire, water, ice or snow, or all combined, and the necessarily rough usage they had received in being pulled from the river and the wreck. There were persons present who felt inclined to drop a tear as they tenderly handled an infant's tiny shoe, which, like the rest, had suffered from the flames. One stocking a middle aged woman, attired in deep mourning—Mrs. J. B. Hopkins, of Painesville—identified as having been knit by herself for her brother, Mr. John Potter, not long before the accident. He left Boston, so as to take the fated Pacific express, it is supposed, as nothing has ever been heard of him since a few days before that unlucky Friday night.

A Sailor's Forethought.

The experienced mariner, before risking the perils of the sea, skillfully adjusts his cargo, and makes provision for every possible contingency, well knowing that when the storm comes, his ability will be taxed to the utmost in saving his vessel and crew. Yet the mariner on the sea of life makes no preparation to cope with the storms (disease) to which all are liable. No studious effort to keep the many organs in order, or regulate their functions. If the liver be sluggish, bowels constipated, head dizzy, dull, or aches, he "guesses it will wear off in a day or so," and does nothing to obtain relief, though knowing that one or two doses of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets will effect a radical cure, and that a bottle or two of his Golden Medical Discovery will effectually ward off all future attacks, by enriching and purifying the blood. Suppose a captain upon discovering that his vessel was too heavy on one side, should "guess it would right itself in a day or so," and do nothing, could any one be blamed but himself, if in a storm his vessel foundered, and all perished? So people who carelessly and foolishly neglect the premonitory symptoms of disease can blame no one but themselves if an early death is the result. Reader if you wish to "know thyself," and the hidden reefs and dangerous coasts upon which thousands have been shipwrecked, while navigating life's ocean, procure a copy of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, an illustrated work of nearly one thousand pages. Over one hundred thousand copies already sold. Price, postpaid, $1.50. Address the author, R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Street on Fire.

The Washington "Star" of the 10th inst., says:—Yesterday afternoon the horse attached to Hall's grocery wagon ran away and spilled a large can of kerosene on Third Street, between G and H northwest. The oil spread over the concrete pavement and some boys touched a match to it, and in a moment the street was in a blaze, the concrete catching fire from the oil. The members of the hook and ladder company extinguished the flames, which had spread nearly half a square.

"It's Only a Cough" has brought many to untimely graves. What is a cough? The lungs or bronchial tubes have been attacked by a cold; nature sounds an alarm-bell, telling where the disease lies. Wisdom suggests, "Try Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry," it has cured, during the last half of a century, thousands upon thousands of persons. As long as you cough, there is danger, for the cough is a Safety Valve. Use "Wistar" and be cured.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

LITKERS, May 13.—John Wirt, aged 17 years, was instantly killed at 9 o'clock this morning, at the Short Mountain mines, while trying to raise a drum, or cylinder, the bar he was using accidentally slipping and striking him on the temple.
