"Not at Home."

A sign on a house on Croghan street informs the public that washing is done there, and it was quite natural that a mechanic working near by should take a bundle under his arm and call there and ask of the boy on the step:

"Bub, is the washwoman in?" "No, sir!" was the prompt reply—"there's no washwoman here at all!"

"But that sign says washing done here," remarked the man.

"S'pose it dose?" remarked the boy in a high key—"s'pose it dose? A lady may become the victim of unfortunate circumstances to such an extent that she is willing to wash and iron shirts and sheets, but that doesn't make a washwoman of her, does it?"

"I thought it did," said the man.

"Humph! if you draw a buggy down to the shop to be repaired, does that make a horse of you?"

The man was silently turning away when the boy added:

"If you want to find the lady of unfortunate circumstances, go round to the side door, but the washwoman isn't at home.

Ish Old Tom Here?

Yesterday afternoon the observation car was being attached to the way passenger train when an individual of German extraction rushed up to Depot Master Wilson in breathless anticipation with the inquiry:

"Ish old Tom here, Charlie?" "Old Tom who?" queried the depot general.

"Why, old Tom Schott?" "No; why?"

"Because I see hish car ish being put on der train."

The depot master collapsed, and sought the shade where the mercury did not range more than 90.

A little boy, hearing some one remark that nothing was quicker than thought, said: "I know something quicker than thought."

"What is it Johnny?" asked his pa. "Whistling," said Johnny. "When I was in school yesterday, I whistled before I thought; and got licked for it too."

"Pa," said a little boy, five years old, "I saw a lion and a lamb lying side by side in the meadow the other morning."

"Tut, tut, James. Don't tell such stories," said the father. "I tell you I did," persisted the child; "but it was a dand-lion."

An old farmer, who was believed to be very weatherwise, once said: "After three successive frosts, always look out for rain." "But," said his wife, "suppose you don't have any frosts at all?" "Well, then," he testily replied, "always look out for rain anyhow."

A sea captain was about to dance at a company with a lady of rank, who delicately hinted to him the propriety of his putting on a pair of gloves. His reply was, "Never mind me, ma'am; I shall wash my hands when I've done dancing."

A young man suffering from "hereditary gout," said he didn't mind the pain of it so much, "but," said he, "the thought that some old ancestor had all the fun of acquiring this precious heirloom is what takes hold of me."

The little girl was quite right who listened to a minister who "roared like a nightingale," in prayer, and then said, "Mother, don't you think that if that man lived a little nearer to God he wouldn't have to talk so loud."

Rector: "Those pigs of yours are in fine condition." "Jarvis: "Yes, sir, they be. Ah! sur, if we was all on us only as fit to die as them are, sur, we'd do."

Irascible gent (to waiter): They say there's nothing like leather, don't they?" "Yes, sir." "Then it's a lie, for this steak is!"

Fathers with marriageable daughters, look into this matter. Does investigation invest a gate?

Mrs. Partington says that her minister preached about the "parody of the probable son."

A clergyman has said that modern young ladies are not the daughters of Shem and Ham, but of Hem and Sham.

When a man sees his wife shedding a cataract of tears, it well-Niagrates him beyond endurance.
