

A Pretty Man Trap.

The St. Louis "Journal" says: "Arm and Duplisse, alias Cecile Bartram, alias Mary Seafon, alias Hattie Downes, alias etc., is one of the most skillful blackmailers in the country. She works alone, assisted sometime by a male friend. Not more than two months ago, under the assumed name of Mary Seafon, she got employment as housekeeper in the family of a wealthy merchant, and she displayed such knowledge of household affairs that Mr. J. and his wife voted her a priceless treasure. She had been there about a week, and the lady of the house went on a visit to friends in the country. One night Mr. J. went home late, and ascended to his bedchamber to retire for the night. While turning down the gas he heard a noise from behind the bed. Drawing aside the bed curtains, and he saw his housekeeper, clad only in a light chemise, lying on the outside of the bed. Before he could recover his presence of mind the woman sprang to the floor, and winding her arms around him, held him in a vise like clasp and began to kiss and hug him. He struggled to free himself, and seeing this the woman uttered a piercing scream, followed by shriek after shriek. The household was aroused, and a minute later every servant was in the room gazing in amazement at the suggestive spectacle. Mrs. Seafon was lying prone on the floor in a dead faint, her dress torn in several places and her hair disheveled, and Mr. J. stood looking at them aghast. The woman told a story about suddenly awaking and finding herself in Mr. J.'s embrace, in his room. The appearances were conclusive and the beautiful housekeeper quit the house the next morning $500 richer.

Two Scenes.

Scene 1st.—Two lovers by moonlight alone. He: "You ought to know I love you, darling." She looks down, blushes and—snuffs. He: "Don't you love me just the least little bit?" She: "Yes (snuff), I love you ever so much (snuff); I could die for you." (Snuff and kisses ad infinitum.) Scene 2d.—One year after marriage. He: "Confound it! I wish you would break yourself of that disgusting habit of snuffing." She (deprecatingly): "I can't help it, Charlie, I've had the catarrh four or five years." He: "Forgive me, dear, I didn't mean to be cross, but in the name of Cupid, get some of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. They say it is a sure cure. You know Ed. Brown, they said he was incurable, and it cured him completely." She: "I'll do any thing to please you, Charlie." (Interesting tableau.)

A dispatch from Milton, on the Hudson, says: A young lady of seventeen, living in New York, but at present boarding at Dr. Hasbrouck's residence in this village, was surprised while playing at the piano to-day by two masked men, who entered the drawing room, and laying hold of her stupefied her with a chloroformed sponge. She was alone in the house at the time, and when the other inmates returned about 10 o'clock, they found her lying insensible and stripped of her attire in the hall way. A posse of men started in pursuit of the assailants, but have found no traces of them so far.

The other day a lady of New London, Conn., attending a picnic, took refuge under a tree during a severe thunderstorm. The electric fluid not only burned the unfortunate woman to a crisp, but tore open the ground on which she stood, digging a grave, as it were, into which the mutilated remains were thrown. It is rarely that persons are killed by lightning out in the open country, but to take refuge under a tree is but to invite almost certain death.

An Ohio lady recently applied to the court for an injunction to restrain those who refused her access to her sick husband's chamber, and the defence filed an affidavit from her husband to the effect that he had been induced to marry her through fraud, and didn't want her near him.

Hiram Troop, of Intercourse, Lancaster county, and his father were making a grain stack, and when his father went down he left a fork on the top of the stack. When the boy jumped down, the fork slid after the struck him on the right shoulder, penetrating to the lung, killing him almost instantly.
