PRINTING of every description neatly executed at the Bloomfield Times Office at reasonable rates.

☞ Brown says he's been so often deceived by the chicken at his boarding-house that he calls it the mocking bird.

☞ An old salt sitting on a wharf, the other day, very soberly remarked, "I began the world with nothing, and I have held my own ever since."

☞ "I wish to be a friend to the friendless, a father to the fatherless, and a widow to the widowless," said a gushing speaker at a recent revival meeting.

☞ Several years ago a young man in New Orleans put a sum of money in a savings' bank, and forgot all about it until recently, when, after reckoning up the interest, it was found that—that the bank had failed.

☞ "Madam," said a trance medium, "your husband's spirit wishes to communicate with you." "No matter," said the widow. "If he's got no more spirit in the other world than he had in this, it's not worth bothering about."

☞ The superintendent approached a youth of color, who was present for the first time in Sunday school, and asked his name, for the purpose of placing it on the roll. The good man tried in vain to preserve his gravity, when the answer was returned:
"Well, massa calls me Cap'n, but my maiden name is Moses."

☞ "We have got to practice the most rigid economy at such a time as this," remarked a man the other day to a crowd on the sidewalk. "I have stopped all the papers for which I formerly subscribed, and don't buy candy, toys and such trumpery for the children; times are hard. Come in, boys, and take a drink!"

☞ An Illinois Freshman has the reputation of having thus outwitted a pert Senior:
Senior: "Do you know why our college is such a learned place?"
Freshman: "Of course; the Freshmen all bring a little learning here, and as the Seniors never take any away, it naturally accumulates."

☞ At a recitation in ancient history, an auburn-haired student, tempted thereto by the assertion that "the Egyptians were in the habit of sacrificing red headed girls to the devil," puts the question:
"What did they do with the red headed boys?" and the professor answers unto him:
"They supposed they would go to the devil of their own accord."

☞ "Have you a card, sir?" asked the doorkeeper of the house.
The man looked a little surprised, and answered:
"Card? No, I don't carry a pack."
"Where are you from?" inquired the doorkeeper.
"Noth Carliny," was the reply.
"What do you do down in North Carolina when you go a visiting? Don't you send your card to the man you want to see?"
The "tar-heel" laughed outright.
"Lor' a massy!" he exclaimed.—"Why, we ride up to a feller's fence and holler to him to tie his dog, and then we light and go."

☞ Jim Slawson is a day-laborer and the village wag. Unfortunately he takes so much of the spirituous in the form of whiskey that he has no relish for the spiritual in the way of preaching. The minister, who is not a rapid man, meeting Jim one Saturday night, said:
"This gentleman is the Rev. Mr. S——, who will preach for us to-morrow. You had better come to church; he will give us some excellent sermons."
Jim, with a leer in his eye, replied:
"Well, that would be a rare treat for us." And straightway passed he onward into his own house.

☞ It is one of the peculiarities of an Indiana child, that one his earliest developments is a genius for finance. At Lafayette, recently, a gentleman who teaches a class in Sunday school, by way of illustrating a certain point took a new silver dollar and asked:
"What is this?"
"A little fellow responded "Ninety-two cents."
This was not exactly apropos, so the teacher went on:
"What is the motto on it?"
"In God we trust," responded and another young numismatist.
"What do we trust Him for?" continued the teacher.
"For the other eight cents," replied the first little financier, and that ended the dialogue.
