Yellow Fever Contributions .- The Philadelphia Public Ledger of last Thursday in giving the receipts at Dexel & Co.'s for the South, credits citizens of Newport with $77, and the Congregations of New Bloomfield with the $56 mentioned in our last week's issue.

A Fish Story .- The Millerstown Herald of last week says : " Last Saturday the family of Mr. John C. Beller, residing in this borough, was suddenly surprised by a large sucker being hurled against the window sash, with such force as to break several panes of glass. It had escaped from the talons of a bald eagle, the eagle darting after its prey with a perserverance that could only have been checked by the interpositions of a dog, which came to the rescue of the spoils. The fish was alive and afforded a good meal to Captain W. C.

Theft.-One day last week a woman named Robinson, living a couple of miles South of this place, had quinces in town for sale, and among other places, she called at the residence of Mr. Harry Smith, and not finding Mrs. S. in at the time, appropriated a very fine tidy and left. The article was shortly afterward missed. The woman was suspected, and followed by several gentlemen, and charged with the theft, which she denied, but being threatened with the law, she produced the tidy, which she had neatly folded and placed in the bottom of her basket, and asked if that was what was wanted. She was then allowed to proceed.

To Tobacco Growers. - We learn that some tobacco growers have gotten into difficulty from their ignorance of the requirements of the revenue laws. For this reason we have thought it best to inform those of this county who have commenced the raising of tobacco of one of the points of the law which we know many are not aware of. A safer and better plan however would be to confer with the Deputy collector of the district, who will give all the necessary information. The law says: No person is allowed to manufacture cigars, not even for their own use, without first giving bonds and furnishing statement to the collector of the district and procuring his certificate, and complying with all regulations referring to the manufacture of cigars. Violators are liable to a fine of from $100 to $5,000 and to imprisonment of from three months to five

The Sheriff's Posse Resisted. posse under the command of County Commissioner Reitz started down the river on Monday for the purpose of tearing down the fish baskets and eel walls. They had proceeded in their work as far as McKee's Half Falls, opposite Georgetown, when a large party of the residents of that neighborhood formed in battle array and resisted the efforts of the posse. They were very threatening, and after taking down about twenty names of the combatants, the sheriff's party returned to Sunbury. Warrants will be issued for the arrest of all the parties, and the constitutionality of the Fish Act in regard to the erection of cel walls and fish baskets will be thoroughly tested. The deputies left town again for the purpose of destroying those below Shamokin Dam, where resistance is also feared .- Sunbury Daily.

Accident at a Funeral .- The Harrisburg Telegraph of last week says :-"Yesterday as the funeral of Mr. Tobias Bentz's little daughter (who died Monday last) was going from Shiremanstown to Chestnut Grove, York county, for burial, on the State road between Centre Square and Brougher's bridge, a horse in one of the rear carriages stumbled and fell, and in getting up broke the harness, when he became unmanageable, ran around several buggies in front of him, taking the buggy with him, and in crossing a small bridge, three or four feet high, with bank on each side, caught another buggy, when both buggies upset down over the bridge and embankment, the horses also going down. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, who were in the first, were hurled out before getting to the bridge. Mr. M. Bentz and son, who were in the second, went with the falling buggy, but fortunately all escaped with nothing more than some bruises and great fright. The entire funeral train, was detained for a while, and general confusion and excitement prevailed, some jumping from their buggies to save their lives, others to arrest the runaway team, which was so badly wrecked that it could not be used. So after cleaning dust and reorganizing Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were taken into other buggies and proceeded to the place of burial without further trouble, feeling grateful to God for this wonderful deliverance.

New Books,-A new series of Readers andSpellers is being introduced in schools in this section. The reader is the Franklin series, and is really the best series of books we have ever examined. The paper, printing and binding is very good, while the price is much below that of the books now in use. We believe, however, that the best reading lessons that can be found, except for the very young scholars, would be to take selections from a well printed weekly news-

Cumberland County .- We copy the following from the Cumberland county papers of last week:

A sad accident occurred on Sunday, in North Middleton township, this county, of a nature that has often been moralized upon, and which needs no further comment here, the accident itself being harrowing enough. A twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. Wm. Shugart, of North Middleton, was visiting the county of the co daughter of Mr. Wm. Shugart, of North Middleton, was visiting her Uncle Emanuel, in the same township, and while there she, with some others handled a gun that was kept about the house. As near as we can learn, the girl was examining the muzzle of the weapon, when by some means it was discharged, the load passing through her neck, killing her instantly. The body was taken home and the undertakers Sipe Brothers sent for. The girl is spoken of highly and her untimely death has saddened the entire neighborhood. hood.

On Friday last, William, a twelve-year old son of Mr. Samuel Weigle residing near Craighead's station, had his right arm broken in two places below the elbow, while assisting his father in threshing grain. The strap broke and commenced winding around the pulley of the cylinder. Young Weigle atviinder. oung tempted to remove the strap when his arm was caught and broken as above stated. Dr. Sherman rendered the nec essary surgical aid and the boy is doing

On last Tuesday morning while Mrs. Margaret Oyster, of New Cumberland, accompanied by a small boy, was ap-proaching Bridgeport in a carriage, the horse attached to it became frightened at a locomotive and backed the vehicle up the side of an embankment upsetting it and completely covering the occupants. The vehicle was badly damaged, but the occupants received only a big fright-escaping without a scratch.

The residence of D. A. M'Allister, a merchant of Mount Holly springs, Cum-berland county, was robbed on Tuesday night, the burglar entering Mr. M'A.'s sleeping apartment, taking $150 from his pantaloon pockets. The room of Mr. M'Allister's brother was then entered and a silver watch valued at $30 and about $12 in money was stolen from him.

Juniata County .- We copy the following from the Juniata county papers of last week.

Mrs. Jacob Esh, of Spruce Hill twp., died suddenly about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, of heart disease.

On Tuesday of last week Jackson Glinger, residing near Doyles Mills, was kicked by a horse, sustaining injuries from which he died on the following Friday. The remains were interred at St. Paul's graveyard.

The Juniata county national green-back party met at Mifflin Monday and nominated J. Warren Plette, of Thompsontown, for assembly; Wm. Egolf, of Patterson, for county treasurer; J. C. Curren, of Patterson, for prothonotary; B. F. Burchfield, also of Patterson, dis-trict attorney; C. C. North, for con-

On Saturday, W. W. Kokendaffer, a citizen of Mexico, came to this town, and remained through the evening to attend Parker's auction, where, among other goods, he bought a couple of hand towels. About 10 o'clock at night he left for home, in company with a young man named Kauffman, who lives in the first house along the pike on this side of John Gallaher's home in Walker township. When Kauffman's home was reached he passed in, and Kokendaffer passed on toward Mexico. He had noticed men behind them, but paid no attention to them till they came up to him, at a point about half way between John Gallagher's and the road that leads from the pike to Port Royal, when one of the three which constituted the number put a hand on his shoulder from behind and demanded his money. He refused to give it, and the next instant a pistol was thrust into his face and he was told that if he uttered a word or made any resistance he would be shot. While he was thus threatened the other two outlaws took hold of him; one crushed his hat over his eyes, and thus threatened and blinded he had to submit to the third one of the party taking the contents of his pockets for examination. They examined everything he had, even the contents of a bottle which contained medicine. All things were returned to his pockets exempting the even the contents of a bottle which contained medicine. All things were returned to his pockets, excepting the money, which amounted to fourteen or fifteen dollars, that they kept. After robbing him, they took one of the towels that he had bought at auction and gagged him, by passing it in his mouth and tying it at the back of his head. They then took his pocket hand-kerchief, tied his wrists, doubled him up, slipped his arms over his knees, and passed a piece of rail, as a pin, through between the arms and the underside of the knee-joints, and thus robbed, and gagged, he was laid by the fence at the roadside. While he lay there he heard the Mifflin town clock strike 11. A man and a woman passed in a buggy, but the alarm that he made was not sufficient to attract their attention. Two men in a alarm that he made was not sufficient to attract their attention. Two men in a wagon came along. Their attention was attracted by his Indistinct cry of Help! Help! They stopped, looked him up and released him. His deliverers were David Van-Ormer and Jerome Kauffman, citizens of Walker township. Kokendafter is of the opinion that the outlaws followed him from this town—Invited Sentine! town.-Juniata Sentinel.
