The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and safely.

Manhood! How Lost, How Restored! Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhoea or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Remittal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Debility, Impediments to Marriage, etc., also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only six cents. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and safely.

“Do not marry a widower,” said an old lady, “a ready-made family is like a plate of cold potatoes.” “Oh, I’ll soon warm them over,” replied the damsel; and she did.

An Indiana girl says that “she finds nothing so good for the complexion as rubbing her face on a young man’s vest. The young man must be inside of it, though.

Wishing to pay his friend a compliment, a gentleman said: “I hear that you have a very industrious wife.” “Yes,” replied the friend, with a melancholy smile, “she’s never idle; she’s always finding something for me to do.”

“Whiskey is your greatest enemy,” said a minister to Deacon Jones. “But,” said Jones, “don’t the Bible say, Mr. Preacher, that we are to love our enemies?” “Oh yes, Deacon, Jones, but it don’t say that we shall swallow them.”

An old Irish soldier who prided himself upon his bravery, said that he had fought in the battle of “Bull Run.” When asked if he had retreated and made good his escape as others did on that famous occasion, he replied: “Be jabbers, those that didn’t run are there yet.”

An honest ignoramus who had escaped a great peril by an act of heroism was much complimented for his bravery. One lady said, “I wish I could have seen your feat.” Whereupon he blushed and stammered, and finally, pointing to his pedal extremities, said, “Well, there they be, mum.”

The defendant, having been proved guilty of the offense of calling the complainant opprobrious names, as “thief,” “robber,” &c., is duly fined. He pays his fine and asks the Judge: “Your Honor, there is, I understand, a law against calling an honest man a thief; does the law forbid a man to call a thief an honest man?”

“Of course not,” replies the magistrate. “Then, sir,” says the defendant, turning to his prosecutor, with a triumphant air, “you are the most honest man I have ever met.”

How to Tell Bad News. Visitors from the country, at the door of a Southside residence, to a German, next door: “Jane not at home, did you say?” German—“Nein, Chane’s nod at home.”

Visitor—“Where is she?” German—“She’s gone the cemetery down.” Visitor—“When will she be back?” German—“Oh, she von’t come back already any more; she’s gone to stay; she’s det.”

A colored brother whose eyes were watery, and who had evidently been imbibing experience whisky, was telling his young friend George that he ought to gine, too. Said George, “I would, but de temptation to do wrong is too strong for me.” “Whar’s yer temptation!” exclaimed brother Peter. “I was dat way myself once. Right in dis town I had a chance to steal a ba’ of boots—mighty fine ones, too. Nobody was dar to see me, and I reached out my hand and de debil said take ‘em, Den a good spirit whispored for me to let dem boots alone.” “An’ you didn’t take ‘em?” “No, sah—not much. I took a pa’ o’ cheap shoes off de shelf, an’ I left dem boots alone!”

A Disgusted Father. The following correspondence recently took place between a Southern father and a gentleman of the faculty of Yale College. South Carolina.—“Prof.—Dear Sir—My son informs me that he is obliged to sit next a negro day after day which is highly disagreeable to him and offensive to me. Will you please provide some different arrangement? Yours, etc.” To which he received the following reply.—“Yale College, New Haven. —Esq.: Dear sir, Your favor is at hand. It is true that the students are arranged alphabetically for the present term, and a colored student has his place next your son. But, at the commencement of the next term, the arrangement will be in the order of scholarship, in which case the colored youth will be so near the head of the class, and your son, I regret to say, so near the other extremity, that there will be no further embarrassment on that score—Yours, etc.” The speedy result was a note from a disgusted father, calling home a disgusted son.—American Miscellany
