Strange Mystery of Mrs. Noonan.

FORT ADE LINCOLN, Dakota, Oct. 81 .-A remarkable and singular bit of news spread over the garrison here on yesterday. There has been living and attached to one of the companies of the Seventh Cavalry, as laundress, a person who has gone under the name of Mrs. Noonan, who was married, in 1873, to a soldier of one of the companies of the Seventh Cavalry, having been twice married before, the first time to a man named Nash, and the second time to a person who was killed in the fight with Custer, against Sitting Bull, two years ago. "Mrs. Noonan" has, sincs 1873, done the laundry work of the company to which she was attached with the best of satisfaction, and was as handy with a needle as any woman in the garrison, making all kinds of fine shirts for different ones. She also professed and acted the part of midwife, and, on several occasions, has gone as far as twenty-five miles from here to perform duties of that kind, and at all times giving good satisfaction. Her house was as clean as could be, and the walls were ornamented with some very beautiful pictures. In fact everything about the house, both in and outside, was very tastefully arranged. About two weeks ago she complained of being sick, and was attended by the post surgeon, Dr. Wolveston. She grew worse, however, from the first, and on yesterday morning, the 20th inst., at 5 o'clock, died. Before dying, however on the 29th inst., she intimated to one of the visitors present that she desired to see the priest ; that she had something of a grave mature to reveal before she died. Rev. Father Chrysostrom, of Bismarck, was sent for and came and heard her confession. She lived untill the next morning, when she expired. The residence or quarters of the laundresses of the regiment is a long double building, containing , shout twenty rooms, each occupied by from one to two laundresses. Mrs. Noonan has always been looked upon by the other laundresses of the building as being a "something" between a man and a woman, and had but few associates among them. To one of them, she remarked, a few days before her death, that she desired at her death to be buried with the clothes she had on. At 'her death, however, her body was taken in charge by some of the women of the garrison to prepare her decently for interment, her husband being out with his regiment on the Black Hills. In doing so they discovered, to their surprise, that the woman whom they had known as Mrs. Noonan was not a woman, but a man.

Was it a Corpse?

A marked sensation was created on the Philadelphia express Wednesday morning owing to the nauseous smells arising from a trunk checked at Corry for Philadelphia. When placed on the car it was supposed the trunk contained ordinary baggage, but as the train proceeded eastward the most horrible effluvia permeated every portion of the car. The offensive smells compelled the baggage master to throw open the doors of his car. For about 150 miles he was obliged to inhale the sickening atmosphere, when the trunk was removed to the platform and in that way conveyed to its destination. The train was searched for some man who might know something of the trunk, but no one could be found who could furnish any light on the subject. The only person who purchased a ticket from Corry to Philadelphia disappeared at Williamsport. The trunk no doubt conained a corpse, and an impression gained ground on the train that it was a portion of the remains of A. T. Stewart, recently stolen in New York.

A Strange Confession.

Marshalltown, Iowa, November 9 .- A curious case has arisen in the Criminal Court which promises to produce some interesting complications in law. A jury last night found a man named Dakin guilty of the murder of John K. Slough last March, the punishment being imprisonment in the penitentiary for life. Today Frank Ross, an Italian, who formerly worked for Dakin, after the trial made affidavit that he (Ross) killed Slongh. It is not yet decided what the course of the State's attorney will be.

Poisoned by a Corpse.

NEW YORK, November 11 .- Jas. O'Brien had been employed till ten days ago as a cook at Bellevue Hospital, when he was transferred to the Morgue to take charge of the dead bodies. While engaged in sewing up a corpse in a sack one day last week he pricked the first finger of his right hand with a needle. Some of the poison from the body entered the wound, and yesterday he was brought to Dr. McCreery, the surgeon on duty. He found that poison had permeated his system through the arm and the latter was much swollen. Dr. McCreery said last night that his arm would have to be amputated, and the man would probably die. This is the first case of the kind at Bellevue Hospital.

One of the directors states that the total liabilities will not exceed half a million, while the value of the works and town lots in Allentown owned by the company is set down at over a million dollars.
