The Dutchman's Dog.

"You've lost a dog, have you? Well, walk right over to that pen in the corner; there you will see the host of lost children, and possibly the prodigal may be found."

The German went over as directed, and after carefully scanning the caged curs, returned and stated that he was not there.

"No sir; he dond vas dhere; I didn't tink he vas dhere; of he vas here, by dis time he vood hafe had more as a dozen fights mit efery dog as vas dhere. You might took a dog up some odder time, doe, and I dond vould like to hafe him kilt: so if you vould let me know bout dot I vould come and got him. I'll tole you vot kind of a dog dot vas; he vas a she dog, und he looks like-he looks like-vell, he dond look like notings; he vas a leetle dog; he vas kind of a brindle, mit one-half of his back down vas a black shtripe, und he vas brown mit his eyebrows over; he always runs vhen he valks, und vhen he meet mit anodder dog dhere's bound to be some onpleasantness before as dhey got acquainted."

Where Wit Won.

"What's the woman charged with ?"

said the court. "She's a deadbeat and a vagrant, your honor," said the officer who arrested her.

Then the woman spoke up and said; "If I can prove that I'm all right will your honor let me go?" "Of course," said the court.

"Then," said the prisoner, "here's the family Bible, by which you'll see I'm Moll Wright." "Saw my leg off," shouted the officer, who saw the point, "if she hasn't beat the court, too." And the court rubbing his nose with his forefinger and gently murmured:

"Discharge the prisoner."

A Surprised Old Man. An old man reproached his son for carrying a gold watch in a very careless and exposed manner; but the young gentleman persisted in the practice, in spite of paternal admonition. In a crowd at the theatre one evening, the old gent!eman asked his son to tell him what o'clock it was; and the young man was distressed to find his watch had been stolen. "Never mind," said his father, smiling; "I took it myself to show you how easily you could be robbed-here it is!" He put his hand in his fob to restore it; but lo, and behold it was gone! some thief, more adroit than himself, had appropriated the property.

At a funeral in the country an undertaker was directing the ceremonial, when he noticed a little man giving orders, and, as he thought, encroaching upon the privileges of his own office. He asked him; "And wha are ye, my mon, that taks sae muckle on ye?" "Oh! dinna ye ken?" said the man, under an evident sense of his own importance. "I'm the corpse's brither?"

The parish clerk in a small church in Somersetshire, England, announced: "I gees notice nex Sunday there wun't be no Sunday, 'cause Rector's goin' to t'other parish fishin." By this the accustomed congregation understood that the clergyman would be officiating a few miles off.

Old Party (who has sent for the landlord)-" Landlord, I can't get anything to eat; your pretty waiter girls devote their time to the good looking young fellows. Haven't you got a homely old waiter who has lost her beauty ?" GF An uncle recently found his nephew playing the violin, and the following Lits took place: "I fear, nephew, you lose a great deal of time with this fiddling." "Sir, I endeavor to keep time." "You mean, rather, to kill time." "No; I only beat time."

A lecturer, addressing a mechanics' institute, contended that " Art could not improve nature," when one of the audience set the whole assembly in a roar by exclaiming. "How would you look without a wig ?"

The tramps are a lucky lot, after all. The returns are all in, and it is a positive fact that not a single, solitary tramp lost a dollar by the Bank of Glasgow failure.

What's the use of your trying to lie about it so clumsily?" said the magistrate, benevolently; " haven't you a lawyer?"

The only time any one ever favors politics in the pulpit is when he hears the clergyman go for the opposition.
