One of Judge Black's Stories.

Judge Black, of Pennsylvania, tells a comical story of a trial in which a German doctor appeared for the defense in a case for damages brought against a client of his by the object of his assault. The eminent jurist soon recognized in the witness, who was produced as a medical expert, a laboring man who some years before, and in another part of the country had been engaged by him as builder of post and rail fences. With this cue he opened his cross-examination. "You say, doctor," he began with great deference and suavity, "that you operated upon Mr. ———'s head after it was cut by Mr. ———?"

"Oh yaw," replied the ex-fence-builder; "me do dat; yaw, yaw."

"Was the wound a very severe one, doctor?"

"Enough to kill him, if I not save his life."

"Well, doctor, what did you do for him?"

"Everything."

"Did you perform the Caesarian operation?"

"Oh, yaw, yaw; if me do not do dat he die."

"Did you decapitate him?"

"Yaw, yaw; me do dat, too."

"Did you hold a post-mortem examination?"

"Oh, to be sure, Schudge; me always do dat."

"Well, now, doctor"—and here the Judge bent over in a friendly, familiar way—"tell us whether you submitted your patient to the process known among medical men as the post-and-rail-fenciorum?"

The mock doctor drew himself up indignantly; "Sherry Plack," says he, "I always knowed you was a tam jay-hawk lawyer, an' now I know you are a tam mean man."

Where the Difference Was. A good story is told of comedian Joe Murphy.

It was during the "blue ribbon" excitement, and Joe was journeying to a small town in the vicinity of Pittsburg. As the train steamed into the depot, it was boarded by a half dozen men, who, after a hurried conference with the conductor, approached the comedian with beaming faces.

"Mr. Murphy, I believe," said the spokesman, hat in hand.

"At your service, sir," replied Joe.

"Delighted to meet you, sir. We are the committee appointed to take you in charge," and they fairly dragged the astonished Joe from the car, placed him in a carriage, and they were whirled swiftly away.

"God bless us," thought the exponent of Irish peculiarities. "This is very kind. Never was in the town before. A man's reputation does travel, and that's a fact."

In a short time they reached the hotel, and the committee having placed Joe in the best parlor suite, prepared to depart. "We will call for you after supper, Mr. Murphy," said the spokesman.

"One moment, gentlemen," cried, St. Joseph, as he pulled the bell-chord vigorously. "Waiter, drinks for the party."

"Drinks?" shrieked the conclave in a chorus. "Mr. Murphy, are you mad?"

"Mad," echoed Joe; not a bit of it. Name your beverages, gentlemen.

"Oh, this is a terrible backsliding," said one. "Francis Murphy ordering drinks."

"Francis Murphy," repeated the perplexed Joe. "I am Joe Murphy the comedian."

They saw it all and rushed wildly from the room in search of the temperance apostle who was even then toiling painfully from the depot on foot, "totting" a huge carpet bag.

Both the Murphys drew large houses that night.

"O Granny!" cried Tommy at the top of his voice, "I just seen the biggest ant! It couldn't begin to get into that door." Granny was duly excited, but not so much so as when Tommy told her it was an elephant.

A tenant had been importuned so frequently for his rent that in a climax of exasperation he turned on the landlord with the cogent and conclusive retort;

"Now, you needn't put on so many airs, old man. Why, I owe enough in this town to buy up all your old houses."

It must be gratifying to parents to know that their boys have so perfectly acquired Latin that they are able to use it in ordinary discourse. Two of them were one day engaged in pummeling each other, when a third cried out, "Soe et tuam, Romeo!"
