"If you've got a bad wife, don't 'liquor.' It does no good. A slice of Limburger cheese worn on the upper lip is pronounced a sure cure for a hooked nose.

The difference 'twixt tweedledum and tweedledee is illustrated by the fact that the rich man with a great appetite is called an epicure, and the tramp with the great appetite is called a glutton.

"You bigoted nigger," said Sam to Pete. "Bigoted, what you mean by dat?" asked Pete. "Why," replied Sam, "bigoted means, you know to much for one nigger, and not 'nuff for two."

A damsel applied for a place behind a counter. "What clerical experience have you?" asked the man of dry goods. "Very little," she said with a blush, "for I only joined the church last week."

A little boy seeing a drunken man prostrate before the door of a grocery, opened the door, and putting in his head, said to the proprietor: "See here, mister, your sign has fallen down."

The following verdict was recently handed in by the foreman of a coroner's jury: "Wee ar of a pinion that the decess cum to her death from Violent inflammation in the Armprodust from Unoon Caws."

"Jones, if burglars should get in your house, what would you do?" "I'd do whatever they required of me. I've never had my own way in that house yet and it's too late to begin now—yes alas! too late!"

A mild criticism does one good. "What was the sermon this morning?" asked a mother of her child. "Well," was the reply, "It was about, let me see, it was about twenty minutes too long; that's all I remember."

A grim, hard-headed old judge, after hearing a flowery discourse a pretentious young barrister, advised him to pluck out some of the feathers from the wings of his imagination and put them in the tail of his judgment.

A professor at Cornell, lecturing on the effects of the wind in some Western forests, remarked: "In traveling along the road, I even sometimes found the logs bound and twisted together to such an extent that a mule couldn't climb over them. So I went round."

"What! Twenty-five cents a pound for sausages? Why, I can get 'em down at Schmidt's for twenty cents!" "Vell, den, vy didn't yer?" "Cause Schmidt was out of 'em."

"Vell, uv I was out of 'em, I sell 'em for twenty cents, too." Mr. Spurgeon is credited with this design on hubby's happiness: "when I am marrying young couples I generally tell the young lady to let her husband be the head, for that is according to Scripture and to nature; but I always tell her to be the neck, and twist him around which way she likes."

A plain-spoken woman recently visited a married woman, and said to her, "How do you manage to amuse yourself?" "Amuse!" said the other, "don't you know that I have my housework to do?" "Yes," was the answer, "I see that you have it to do, but as it is never done, I concluded you must have some other way of passing your time."

'Twas a young printer's devil who asked for a kiss, but she quickly replied, did this pert little miss: "You look inky and black, though your head may be level, but I'll never consent to be kissed by the devil." Years passed and the miss became an old maid, with frizzes and curls, false teeth and pomade. Then sadly she sought to recall the old issue; but the printer replied: "The devil won't kiss you."

A clergyman called on one of the members of his parish, who had just lost her husband, in order to offer consolation; and upon her earnest inquiries as to the reunion of families in heaven, he strongly asserted his belief in the fact, and when she asked with anxiety whether any time must elapse before friends would be able to find each other in the next world he emphatically said, "No! they will be united at once." He was thinking of the happiness of being able to offer the relief of such a faith, when she broke in upon his meditations by exclaiming sadly, "Well, his first wife has got him then by this time!"
