A Rat Story.—A lady in this borough had a bag of yeast cakes hanging in such a manner that she thought them safe from the rats. One evening, hearing a noise in that vincinity, she went up to ascertain the cause, and found it was occasioned by the dropping of a meat-hook on the floor, a lot of these hooks having been put near there while not in use. On further investigation it was found that the rats had hung one of the hooks from a nall above, and then by hanging on others had commenced a chain which they continued until it gave them access to the bag of rising cakes. The truth of this statement is youched for by several parties who saw the chain while the rats were making it and after it was completed.

Publishing Accounts.-The time of year is coming when the following will be of interest to auditors. A case was tried in Northumberland county, involving a neglect of auditors to publish in the papers, and after a thorough examination the court decided against the auditors and fined them $20 each. In Allegheny county a like case was tried and with a like result.

Pounding. - Members of Rev. John Edgar's church and congregation invaded his premises last Tuesday evening, laden with many good things for the pastor and his household. It seems somewhat irregular to call such an affair a pound party when many carried what in weight would almost equal their own avoirdupois, but such we believe is the fashionable name for surprises of this kind. When displayed on the long extension table, and in the adjoining rooms, it was hard to say which looked most smiling, the ample provisions, or the handsome ladies who put them in order preparatory to the masculine speeches which followed,

Accident at Chambersburg.-On Monday of last week while shifting cars of the mail train at Chambersburg, one car containing about twentyfive-passengers left the track from some unknown cause, and fell over an embankment about six feet high, turning over on its side. Does He Belong to Perry Co. ? - The Huntingdon News says: On Friday afternoon last, Robert B. Myton, a well known farmer, who resides on the Shavers creek road, five miles from Petersburg, nearly met his death by the blow of a hatchet inflicted by a young man named Andrew Weaver. We learn that the young man came to Mr. Myton's house on the Wednesday previous in search of work, which he obtained. He was furnished with a room in the house and it was not long before he tried to put in execution the plot he had conceived to murder Mr. Myton for his money, which he had seen him have in his possession. On Thursday, it is believed, he watched several opportunities to find Mr. Myton alone, but failed. On Friday aweek, he awaited the time when they went to curry the horses in the barn, which is some distance from the house, and as Mr. Myton had his back turned to him, and was stooping down to curry the horse's leg, he struck him a blow upon the back of the head with the dull edge of a hatchet, causing a gash two luches long. The blow was sufficient to render Mr. Myton insensible for a few minutes, and had it not been that he was wearing a stiff hat, through the band of which the hatchet penetrated, death might have resulted. When he recovered consciousness he found himself lying between the horses and the young man gone. He went to the roadside, and seeing him running away, he called to his son George and Mr. C. Wilson, who were coming home to catch him. They pursued him for some distance, when he turned upon them with a loaded revolver that he had stolen from a drawer in Mr. Myton's house.— The men were not prepared with weapons to attack him and he continued to run; but he was followed on horseback by Mr. Fisher, a neighboring farmer, who overtook him and compelled him to surrender. He was given in charge of the constable at Petersburg, who lodged him in jail on Saturday morning.

The culprit is only twenty years of age, and says he has no parents living, but claims that his home is in Perry

A Query. - Supposing that from San Francisco to New York is a distance of 3,200 miles, and that two trains leave each city daily, Sundays included, at 7 A. M. and 7 P. M., traveling 400 miles every twenty-four hours, thus making the journey precisely in eight days. A train leaves New York on Monday morning for San Francisco, how many trains coming eastward does it meet during the trip? The following answers have been received:

EDITOR TIMES:—My answer to your query of the 18th of February is as follows: The difference of time between New York and San Francisco is about three hours—hence a train starting at New York at 7 A. M. would arrive at San Francisco at 4 A. M. on the 8th day—3 hours before the San Francisco frain starts, consequently would meet 2 trains each day during 7 days—on the 8th none. Answer, 14 trains.

R. L. Magge.

The train question I would answer by saying

If the train is coming in as the other goes out is counted, the reply to the query about trains is 16.

J. W. G.

If you count the train that leaves San Francisco when you arrive, the number of trains will be In reply to the train question, I say that eight trains is the number met. J. M. F.

In answer to the query as to the number of train. &c., I say that the N. Y. train would meet the 15 trains started on the eight days taken for the trip, and would arrive about 3 hours before the train would start on Tuesday morning, therefore the answer is 16.

8. M. B.

The answer to the train question in The Times is 32. Sixteen trains are on the road eastward bound when the New York train starts, and sixteen more starts while the N. Y. train is making the westward trip, therefore the train would meet 32 trains.

Weather Report for February .- B. Mc-Intire, Esq., hands us the following report of the weather, for the month of February 1879. Average of the thermometer at 8 o'clock A. M., 220 12', of barometer 30 inches minus 6-tenths. Average of greatest heat 320 2', and of cold 13° 38'. Wednesday the 12th was the warmest day the mercury running up to 410, and the 15th, 23d and 28th were the coldest days the thermometer sinking to 3 above zero. There fell 23 inches of snow, and 2-tenths of an Inch of rain. This was the coldest February since 1875. There has been a continued freeze since the middle of December.

FALLING SPRINGS, Feb. 24, 1879.

A large tree along Sherman's Creek, in Spring twp., noted for its great height and thickness of the bark, was recently cut by Robert and Joe, who had the bargain at 50 cents per cord, to be paid in beef at 6 cents per pound. When cut down the tree was found to be hollow at the butt, though after 8 feet was taken off the balance was perfectly sound. Sixteen feet was then taken off for lumber and the balance was cut into wood making 7 cords, full measure. Two men could hardly reach around it. The bark measured 5 inches in thickness, and the tree was 90 feet long and carried its thickness to an uncommon height. Is there any tree around this county that will beat this?

For The Bloomford Times

LOYSVILLE, Perry County, Pa.,

March 1, 1819.

Mr. Editor—Dear Sir:—As you have no regular correspondent in our town, we will endeavor to give you a few thems which may be of interest to some of your many readers.

Yesterday was the last Friday of the month which is well known as Directors Day at the poor bouse. The day passed off quite lively, and there seemed to be much sympathy manifested towards the poor, judging from the numbers that assembled at the poor house. There is something about those visitations, moreover we don't understand, and that is these good people bring no gifts with them to give to the poor, and when they go through the building to see these poor unfortunates they have no word of cheer and consolation for them, but they go through the inmate's department in a very short time, nothwithstanding they sometimes spend the greater part of the day in the more pleasant parts of the building, and then there is something strange about the way those large dinners are disposed of; it seems that these good people we call visitors eat the big dinners, and the poor unfortunate inmates don't. So you can readily see the difference, and how these faithful good people shower down the blessings innumerable upon the poor innestes. Now some of your readers who have been neglecting this important duty of visiting the poor, may wonder who these faithful ones are, and indeed we wonder who they are too some times. Some of the unfaithful may wonder. If there are many who discharge their duties on director days; and we would say that on the day previous to the last, there was reported to have tagen dinner. Here about one hundred, but owing to some cause or other there was not so many there on the last day there being only about seventy-five for dinner, but as a portion of them stayed for supper, we suppose the blessings were to equal the previous we would conclude by saying that if the directors of the lamous institution are desirous of Cumberland County .- We copy the following from the Cumberland county papers of last week:

Mr. Levi Snyder, who lives in Lower Frankfort township, about a half mile east of the Stone church, suffered a loss on Sunday last by the burning of his house. Mr. S. was at church when he was informed that his residence was in was informed that his residence was in flames, and at once hastening to the spot, he, with the help of his neighbors, succeeded in rescuing a considerable portion of his household goods. The fire was first seen by Mr. James Jackson, who happened to be passing along the road, and who at once gave the alarm and rendered ail the assistance possible. The building was new, having been erected last summer, and was insured for $400 in the Lurgan Fire Insurance Co., of Franklin county, but this amount does not cover Mr. S.'s entire loss, as it is estimated to reach five or six hundred dollars. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue.

On Wednesday of last week, Mrs.

On Wednesday of last week, Mrs. Louis Weidman, who resides on East Pomfret street, next door to Groome's grocery, was engaged at baking. A neighbor came in and engaged her in conversation, and while thus engaged she turned her back to the stove, which was very hot. A moment afterwards was very hot. A moment afterwards she was startled to find her dress on fire. She tried to extinguish the flames with her hands, and her friend assisted, but with no success. She then ran out on the street, and threw herself upon the snow. Just then a man came along, who lent his efforts to rescue the poor woman from her danger, but did not succeed until she was severely burnt.

Juniata County .- We copy the following from the Juniata county papers of last week.

Miss Ann Sellers, while walking along the pavement in McAllisterville one day last week, was stricken with paralysis. She is still in an unconscious state.

On Tuesday morning a fine doe ran into the barn yard of Mr. Beashore, in Milford township. Mr. B. went for it, but the deer was not willing to be captured at that time and started off at but the deer was not willing to be captured at that time and started off at break-neck speed. Mr. B. followed after, and came upon it on the ice on Rohm's mill dam, and captured it. The deer had, very likely, been chased from the mountain by dogs and worried out so that it had to give up and allow itself to be captured.—Democrat and Register.

On Wednesday morning between 4 and 5 o'clock an attempt was made by thieves to enter the residence of Dr. W. J. Rice, of Port Royal. Mrs. Garver, of Perry county, sister to Dr. R., who is visiting her brother, heard the thief at work trying to open the front door, but could not think what occasioned the noise until the villains succeed in opening the door, when she gave the alarm, and the thief was frightened away before he could secure any goods.

On Saturday morning last Mr. Uriah Guss and his son Cloyd, who resides in Turbett township, went out into a field on his farm with a sled to get some wood. After loading the sled Cloyd drove back to the house with it, a distance of about half a mile. After he had started away Mr. Guss cut down a tree, and was seen doing so by Ner Meloy who was across the Tuscarora creek opposite to where Mr. Guss was. Cloyd Guss raturened with the second Guss returned with the sled in about half an hour and found his father fastenhalf an hour and found his father fastened by the limbs of the tree and standing on his feet with his body bent forward and down and his head near his feet. He made haste and liberated his father; but alas, he was dead, with his neck, back, several ribs and an arm and leg broken. The son then made an alarm and secured the assistance of Mrs. William Kennedy, by whose aid the dead body of Mr. Guss was placed on the sied and taken to his home. It is thought that when the tree was cut off, a large limb prevented it from going clear to the ground and that Mr. Guss then cut the limb off, when it fell and caused his death as aforementioned.

O Lest.—On Saturday the 8th inst., one the road between Landisburg and Fall-ing Springs, a large dark double blanket shawl. A reward of one dollar will be paid for its return to Wm. Bousam, Landisburg, Pa.
