A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment and Radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermator-rhos, induced by Seit-Abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c.—By ROBERT J. CULVERWELL, M. D., author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bougles, instruments, rings, or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

LEWIS POTTER, Attorney, April 1, 1879.

A short time ago a Danbury man had forty dollars stolen from him. The thief was subsequently struck with remorse, and sent back twenty dollars, with a note to the effect that as soon as he received more remorse he would send back the rest.

The bridal vell originated in the custom of performing the nuptial ceremony under a square piece of cloth, held over the bridegroom and bride, to conceal the blushes of the latter. At the marriage of a widow, it was dispensed

A gentlemau was once making fun of a sacque which a young lady wore. "You had better keep quiet," was the reply, "or I will give you the 'sack'." "I should be most happy," was the gallant response, "if you would give it to me as it is-with yourself Inside of it."

GTA little fellow of four, who attends infant class in Sunday-school, received one Sunday morning a card on which were the words, "Pray without ceasing." After his mother had explained the text, he said, "I guess I won't show this to the minister; he prays long enough now."

John Randolph was in a tavern, lying on a sofa in the parlor, waiting for the stage to come to the door. A dandified chap stepped into the room with a whip in his hand, just come from a drive, and standing before the mirror, arranged his hair and collar, quite unconscious of the presence of the gentleman on the sofa. After attudinizing awhile he turned to go out, when Mr. Randolph asked him: "Has the stage come?" "Stage, sir! stage!" said the fop; "I've nothing to do with it, sir." "Oh! I beg your pardon," said Ran-dolph, quietly; "I thought you were the driver!"

Frederick the Great was always very fond of disputation; but as he generally terminated the discussion by collaring his antagonist, and kicking his shins, few of his guests were disposed to enter the arena against him. One day, when he was even more disposed than usual for an argument, he asked one of his suite why he did not venture to give his opinion on some particular question. "It is impossible, your Majesty," was the reply, "to express an opinion before a sovereign who has such very strong convictions, and who wears such very thick boots.

A Good Hint.

Rev. Mr.—had traveled far to preach to a congregation at -.. After the sermon he waited very patiently, evidently expecting some of the brethren to invite him to dinner. In this he was disappointed. One after another departed, until the house was almost as empty as the minister's stomach. Summoning resolution, however, he walked up to an elderly-looking gentleman, and gravely said: "Will you go home to dinner with me, to-day, brother ?" Where do you live ?" "About twenty miles from this, sir." "No," said the man, coloring; "but you must go with me." "Thank you-I will cheerfully." After that time the minister was no

The Wrong Window. Some years ago old Judge Dash, of Maine, accompanied by his wife, visited New York. The Judge "put up" at the tavern down by the Battery. Before retiring for the night, and after Mrs. Dash had retired, the Judge would have a bath. Having performed his ablutions, the Judge looked around for some receptacle into which he might turn the contents of his washbowl. There was nothing at hand, and rather than summon a servant, the old gentleman conceived the idea of throwing the water out of the window.

So, mounting a chair, he opened a little square window, which he thought opened into the back yard, and putting the bowl through it, deliberately emptied its contents.

A howl of rage greeted the ears of the good old judge, accompanied by female cries, and loud objurations in a mascu-

"What in creation are you up to?" shouted somebody.
"What in creation are you prowling around at this time o'night for?" replied

"You ought to be at home with y'r wife and children."

But the poor fellow outside had been quietly sleeping in bed with his better half, and the little window which the judge had opened was intended as a ventilator for both rooms. The judge had so completely drowned out his neighbors that they were obliged to seek another room. another room.
