A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment and Radical cure of Semimal Weakness, or Spermatorrhea, induced by Seif-Abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally: Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c.—By Robert J. CULVER WELL, M. D., author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bougles, instruments, rings, or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

WILLIAM SINGER.
Administrator. LEWIS POTTER, Attorney, April 1, 1879.

A son of the Siamese twins is achieving high honors in an Eastern college, which leads a funny man to ask; "Why should he not rise in the world? His father was well connected."

In a tavern, in a small town, sat a farmer, who was plagued and bantered by a dozen of guests who were present.
"Well," said the farmer at last, "I've got the best of all of you." "How so?"
asked all. "In me you've only got one fool, while in you I've got above a dozen."

Bright little girl-"The robbers can't steal my mamma's diamond earrings, 'cause papa's bid them." Visitor-"Where has he hid them?" Little girl-"Why, I heard him tell mamma he had put them up the spout, and he guessed they would stay there."

"I will and bequeath," said Pat, "to my beloved wife, Bridget, all my property, without reserve; to my eldest son, Patrick, one-half the remainder; and to Dennis, my youngest son, all the rest. If anything is left, it may go to Terrence O'Carty in sweet ould Ireland."

A four-year-old saw his parents preparing for church, and asked them to take him along with them. He was told he was too little, and must wait till he should grow bigger. "Well," returned he, "you'd better take me now, for when I get bigger I may not want to go." The parents saw the point; he was taken.

Mrs. Whiteflour had company. Now, if there is one thing more than another on which Mrs. Whiteflour prided herself, it was her cooking. "Will you try some of my sponge cake, Mrs. Tattletongue?" said she; "it isn't very good, to be sure. I never had such poor luck in my life as I did in making it," "Why ma," cried Johnny, in amazement, "you said yesterday that was the best sponge cake you ever made!"

A friar once met some medical students, who asked him. "Do you know the difference between a friar and a jackass? Give it up? "Yes, I give it up." "Well, said they, "one wears a cross on his breast and the other on his back." "Now," said the friar, "do you know the difference between a medical student and a jackass? Give it up?" "Yes, we give it up; we don't know the difference." "Neither do I," said the friar.

Tommy is just old enough to undestand literally what he hears in church, a place he dreads to go to, for Sunday is a day of misery to him. The other morning he came home in a gloomy state of mind, and confidentially informed his mother that he didn't want to go to heaven. Upon being asked why, he said there was too much Sunday there, for he heard the minister read out of a book that it was a place "where congregations never break up, and Sabbaths never end," and he thought one Sunday a week was all he could stand.

In a wild part of Scotland a dealer in fish used to drive his cart a considerable way inland. On one occasion, when passing a wild moor, where, although there did reside a schoolmaster, the knowledge of the inhabitants of affairs in general was not very extensive, he dropped a lobster. Some children picked it up, and wondering what the strange looking creature could be, took it to the schoolmaster. The dominie put on his "spectacles," and turning it over and over examined it carefully. "Weel," at length said the oracle, "I ken maist o' the wonderful animals o' creation, except twa, and those twa I never saw. They are an elephant and a turtle dove; and so this must be one o' the twa."

A Marriage Ceremony Interrupted.

The Waynesboro (Ga.) "Herald" says: At a colored wedding ceremony in this place on Thursday night last an amusing sensation was created. Just after the minister asked if any one had any objection why these parties should not be joined in the holy bonds of matri-mony" an old man, a former lover of the bride expectant, sprang up nervously and said:

"Yes, I object, for de cause dat man can't give dat woman bread 'nuff' to eat, and for dat cause I object."

The old man was promptly ejected and the ceremony concluded, but he cried, it is said, all the next day for his "lost bride."
