

A Wizard's Practical Joke in Court.

The New York "Herald" says: Just as Justice Flammer was about to leave the Tombs police court yesterday, a richly-attired gentleman of tall, slim build, bearing a striking resemblance to the popular ideal of Mephistopheles, walked hurriedly to the bench. He wore a scarf-pan, representing a coiling serpent with glittering eyes; diamonds sparkled on his fingers, and he looked quizzically out of a pair of large eye-glasses, while he blew clouds of smoke from a fragrant cigarette he was smoking.

He spoke to Justice Flammer in German, and the magistrate, motioning to "Napoleon," the court interpreter, said:

"This gentleman has got some complaint to make. I wish you would find what the trouble is."

"Nap," who is a fat, jolly, easy-going German, asked the stranger what he wanted, and the latter replied, in a low tone, that he had been robbed of a considerable sum of money, and wished to have a warrant for the thief's arrest.

"What's that you say, sir?" inquired "Nap," as he leaned forward the better to catch the words of the stranger.

"I say that I have been robbed," roared the gentleman, and, suddenly plunging his hand into the inner pocket of the interpreter's waistcoat, drew forth a large roll of bills and displayed them to the magistrate. "I say, sir," he repeated to the dumfounded German, "that I have been robbed, and you must be the thief, for this is my money."

"Nap," began to examine his clothing with nervous haste, and explained in a frightened way that he knew nothing of the money.

"What!" exclaimed the stranger, "why you have my ring in your waistcoat pocket now?"

Still more amazed, "Nap" drew the jewel from the pocket indicated. Every one roared with laughter, and the magistrate said, with a smile:

"Well, Mr. Herrmann, I think you had better make a complaint of larceny against our interpreter."

The visitor was Herrmann, the wizard, who had accepted Mr. Justice Flammer's invitation to visit the City Prison and court, and had been induced by the Justice to play a practical joke upon the court interpreter.

"Ah, gentlemen," said Herrmann, as the laughter subsided, "may I have the pleasure of offering you some cigarettes?" He opened a silver cigar case and drew forth a single cigarette. "They are of a peculiar brand, as you see," exclaimed the magician. He held the cigarette in the air, and a shower of cigarettes fell from it. He politely distributed a number of the cigarettes to the court officers and spectators, and went away with the magistrate.

Both Priest and Groom.

An abrupt marriage was celebrated in Worcester, Mass., last Saturday evening a week. In the morning papers the Rev. Mr. Munson, of Missouri, advertised that in the evening he would preach a sermon in three parts in the Advent Chapel. He went into the pulpit and preached a sermon, the first two divisions being "Repentance" and Holiness of Sanctification." He then opened the Bible at Matthew xxv and proceeded to read the parable of the ten virgins. At the sixth verse, "And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him," he stepped down from the pulpit, and a lady stepped forward from one of the front pews, and, taking the Bible, continued to read from the seventh to the tenth verses, inclusive. Mr. Munson then took the lady's right hand and said:

"And now before God and the witnesses I do take this woman whom I hold by the right hand to be my lawfully-wedded wife, to love and cherish her as my own body until Christ shall come to claim us with all saints as his own bride, or until death shall part us."

The woman said: "And now I take this man to be my lawfully-wedded husband, to love, reverence and obey him until the Lord himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout and the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God, or until death shall us sever."

They then knelt, and the man offered a prayer. After the prayer Mr. Munson returned to his desk and closed his discourse by urging the importance of being ready for the coming of the Lord.

The Striking Spinners.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 21.—The most serious disturbance which has occurred here since the present labor troubles took place to-night. A woman with her son came here from Warren, R. I., this afternoon, and the latter, a weaver, was given work at the Mechanics' Mill, and the mother was given a tenement in one of the company's houses on Plain street. About 7 o'clock this evening women in the neighborhood began to make threats, and rocks were thrown at the house and the windows broken. The woman complained to the police and two officers were sent to guard the house. The crowd continued to increase, and the officers deemed it advisable to remove her to safer quarters. As she went through the streets the crowd rapidly increased until about one thousand men, women and children had gathered on Bedford street, at the north end of the Mechanics' Mill, and also opposite the office, where a number of new spinners, including four who arrived this afternoon, were quartered. Another crowd, of about half the size, assembled at the south end of the mill. Rocks were freely thrown, and one of the special watchmen at the mill was struck on the arm and considerably hurt.—Ten policemen were sent to the mill, who succeeded in quelling the disturbance.

A farmer named McQuinn, who lives in Pleasant Valley, Schuylkill county, was visited a few days ago by a gang of eight or ten roughts, who entered the house and demanded whisky. The farmer gave them a jug of liquor, and the men started off with it. McQuinn then took out a revolver and opened fire on the retreating crowd, hitting one man in the face. Shortly afterward the gang returned, and seizing McQuinn unawares, beat him severely with clubs. They then laid siege to the house, but Mrs. McQuinn, having sustained similar attacks by tramps before, knew just how to act. She withdrew to the second story, and from the open windows opened a brisk pistol fire upon the invaders. The roughts were not used to this Indian sort of warfare, and soon retreated.

Mrs. Captain Heap, the lady who created such a sensation in Washington by wearing a white satin court dress artistically painted by hand, is at Newport for the season. The decoration on her dress was the work of her husband, Captain D. F. Heap.

People Wonder Why

we can sell cheaper than any of our competitors.

THREE REASONS.

FIRST.

We buy heavy, pay cash for what we do buy, sell a great many more goods than any of our Competitors, and therefore can sell on much smaller profits.

SECOND.

We always run one stock of clothing off at a sacrifice at the end of the season, and do not have what always eats up profits—Old Stock.

THIRD.

As we manufacture a great many of our own goods we are giving our customers the benefit of this right along, and makes a saving for them of 20 per cent.
