The postage stamp knows its place after it has been licked once.

To change window-glass to tin—Leave the window open when it rains and it will beat in.

A friend told Snodgrass that he was just off a sick bed. "Indeed, And what ails your bed?" asked our friend.

A certain Congressman boasts that he is a "self made man." Those who know him best say he never did undertake to do anything without botching it.

A tramp never ties an eskin around his leg to prevent cramps while bathing. He knows a paevation worth two of that. He never bathes.

He seems to have been shot in the diaphragm," said the doctor. "Oh, no!" exclaimed his weeping listener, "he was shot right in the lower end of the saloon."

"Well, you'll own she's got a pretty foot, won't you?" "Yes, I'll grant you that, but then it never made half as much an impression on me as the old man's."

"Well, sonny," said a doting uncle to his little nephew, who had been absent all day fishing—"well, sonny, did you catch a good many fish?" "No, uncle, but I drowned a good many worms," was sonny's reply.

A certain young lady who was a little behindhand in her summer outfit surprised her parents the other day by asking why she was unlike George Washington. When they gave it up she told them, because she had no little hat-ye.

A Chinaman in California, whose life was insured for a large amount, was seriously hurt by falling from a wagon. There was some doubt of his ever getting better, and at length one of his friends wrote to the insurance company, "Charles half dead, likee half money."

The play was at its height in the card-room of a well known club, and from a distant corner was heard: "We are two to two." "By Jove! we are two to two too," responded a player at an adjoining table. No wonder that a German there present likened our language to a French-horn.

A wife wanted her husband to sympathize with her in a feminine quarrel, but he refused, saying: "I've lived long enough to know that one woman is as good as another, if not better." "And I," retorted the wife, "have lived long enough to know that one man is as bad as another, if not worse."

A correspondent wants to know if wearing a hat tends to make a person bald. We believe it does. Women don't wear hats, and they are not bald—at least they don't wear them on their heads, and so they are not bald there. Hats destroy hair. A woman's hat is worn on the back of her head and that is the reason women have to buy so much back hair.

A certain facetious writer has thus spoken of habit: "Habit is hard to overcome. If you take off the first letter it does not change a bit." If you take off another, you will have a 'bit' left. If you take off still another, the whole of 'it' remains. If you take off another, it is not 't' totally used up. All of which goes to show that if you wish to get rid of a 'habit,' you must throw it off altogether."

The gentleman who attracted attention in church by crying "Holy Moses," had no intention of disturbing the congregation. He had been tacking down carpets the day before, and just as he sat down in his pew he suddenly remembered that he had half a paper of tacks in his coat-tail pocket. We make this explanation in justice to his family who are highly respectable.

ESTRANGED. It was a warm afternoon and young Mr. Cummagen did not go in the house, but sat down in the pleasant porch, as was his custom, after ringing the bell. Her little sister came to the door and looked at him with some curiosity.

"Does your sister Mabel know I am here, Nellie?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," replied the innocent prattler, "I guess she does; she told me to come out and see how shady it made the front yard when you put your feet up on the porch railing." He took them down and sat on them.
